Peace Calls Fail to Halt Chinese Reds

From Reuters and UPI Dispatches
NEW DELHI—Communist Chinese troops pressed their multi-pronged drive into India Wednesday despite Chinese proposals for a cease-fire and high-level peace talks between Peking and New Delhi.

Telstar Station Rocked

ANDOVER, Me. (AP)—Six persons were injured, two seriously, late Wednesday when a boiler exploded in the control building of the Telstar earth station, an official said.

In New York, an American Telephone Company spokesman said damage to the building was not structural and will have no effect on control or operation of Telstar.

A hospital source said the injured men suffered serious burns about the face. The other four were treated for superficial burns of the face and hands.

A spokesman said damage from the explosion was confined to the boiler room.

The spokesman said the six men were doing routine maintenance work in the boiler room when the explosion occurred.

Judge Critical Of Labor Chief

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice of Labor and Congress of T. G. Norris Wednesday accused AFL-CIO President George Meany of failing to live up to his responsibilities as head of the central labor body of the United States.

"We wouldn't be in the present mess... if Mr. Meany had lived up to his responsibilities," said the Vancouver jurist who is investigating labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

The judge said he could not understand why Mr. Meany, as head of the American Federation of Labor, had not done more to bring about a settlement of the dispute.

New Look in Defence

First Assumption: Can't Stand Alone

By HARRY HALLIWELL
Fourth of a Series

In any reasoned approach to a new defence policy for Canada, the first assumption has to be that we cannot defend ourselves by ourselves.

The second assumption has to be that no question of "sovereignty" in the military sense, is involved, for sovereignty in this area does not now and cannot exist.

No Lavish Spending

The third assumption is that, as an underpopulated and, relative to resources, economically underdeveloped country, Canada cannot spend on defence as lavishly as, say, the United States.

Mr. K Eyes Summit

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, calling for a summit meeting, urged the United States Wednesday to stay its hand in the Cuban crisis to relieve the threat of thermonuclear war. He said the Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions but will act if the United States carries out "pirate actions."

"As long as rocket nuclear weapons are not put into play it is still possible to avert war," he said.

VITAL QUESTION

"The question of war and peace is so vital that we should consider useful a top-level meeting in order to discuss all problems which have arisen, to do everything possible to remove the danger of unleashing a thermonuclear war."

TELLS RUSSELL

Khrushchev's comment came in a message to Bertrand Russell, British philosopher who had sent a message to the Soviet leader, appealing to him "not to be provoked by the unjustifiable action of the U.S. in Cuba." Russell also sent a message to President Kennedy calling the U.S. quarantine action a threat to human survival and urging him to "end this madness."

Upon receipt of Khrushchev's message, the 90-year-old philosopher dispatched another telegram from London urging the Soviet premier to "hold back ships in Cuban waters long

KENNEDY REJECTS PLEA FROM UN

Red Ships Back Off From Clash

WASHINGTON (CP)—Some Soviet bloc ships steaming toward Cuba "appear to have altered course," thus backing away from a clash with a massive U.S. fleet blockading Cuba, the defence department said Wednesday.

A spokesman said "other vessels are proceeding toward Cuba." He said no interception of a vessel by the U.S. blockade fleet "has yet been necessary." But the Caribbean vigilance still was being maintained.

STILL MYSTERY

The terse comments did not serve to dispel wholly the mystery shrouding the whereabouts and intentions of a reported 25 Soviet vessels believed bound for Cuba with missiles and bombers that the U.S. has proclaimed it will turn back—with force, if necessary.

But the report that some of the vessels appeared to have altered course, combined with a statement by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that he would not be provoked into rash action, helped provide an air of stability easing tension in the Cuban crisis.

INTENTIONS UNKNOWN

Still missing was any firm evidence of whether the Soviet Union might now or later head some or all of the ships into a full test of the U.S. quarantine on offensive arms shipments into Premier Fidel Castro's encircled island ordered by President Kennedy in a TV-radio address Monday night.

There was no official reaction but there was some doubt whether Kennedy would be willing to meet Khrushchev at the summit until there is further evidence Russia intends to halt its missile build-up in Cuba.

HOWARD GREEN
... stand by friends

China Gives Stern Warning

TOKYO (UPI)—The Communist Chinese government issued a stern statement today calling the American blockade of Cuba a "serious war provocation."

The government statement reaffirmed China's strong support of the Fidel Castro regime and declared: "A warning must be issued to the U.S. imperialists: Don't think that you can lord it over the high seas and do as you will to Cuba. The Cuban people are not alone. The entire Socialist (Communist) camp stands on Cuba's side."

This was the first formal Chinese Communist reaction to the American move.

Canada Backs 'Our Friend'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said Wednesday night Canada is backing the United States "all the way" in the Cuban crisis but he declined under persistent questioning to state categorically that it endorses the U.S. arms blockade.

"We have always stood by our friends and the Americans are our friends, so we are standing by them," Mr. Green told a CBC radio-television press conference.

RESERVATIONS

However, his response to repeated questions on whether Canada agrees with the U.S. "quarantine" of Cuba indicated that the government has strong reservations about it.

"The action has been taken," Mr. Green said in reply to one question. "The important thing is what's done from now on."

From AP and UPI

President Kennedy has turned down the United Nations Cuban appeal in its present form because it provides no guarantee against continuation of the military buildup on the island, it was reported last night.

U Thant, UN acting secretary-general, had asked Kennedy to suspend the naval quarantine of Cuba and Premier Khrushchev to suspend the Soviet Union's armed shipments to Cuba.

Thant told an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council that a suspension of "two or three weeks" might enable the countries to get together and negotiate a settlement of their deadlock over a Russian military build-up in Cuba.

ALL STOPS OUT

Like other speakers in the council debate, Thant pulled out all the stops in describing the extent of the danger facing the world.

"What is at stake is not just the interests of the parties involved, nor just the interests of all member states, but the very fate of mankind," the secretary-general said.

FOR ALL TIME

"If today the United Nations should prove itself ineffective, it may have proved itself for all time."

Thant noted that there is some common ground—a call for negotiations—in rival resolutions presented by the U.S. and Russia on the Cuban question.

UNACCEPTABLE

High officials in Washington said Thant's suggestion for the two or three week suspension of Soviet arms shipments and simultaneous lifting of the U.S. blockade was unacceptable as it stood.

They indicated that Kennedy, in his reply sent to the secretary-general about 6 p.m. P.D.T., outlined the conditions upon which the United States would insist be met before agreeing to suspend its quarantine.

GUARANTEES

The president was understood to have said the United States must have definite guarantees that the arms shipments and military buildup on the island would not continue. It was also said the United Nations would have to make provisions for on-the-spot inspection to make certain the moratorium was being observed.

The conditions, under which the United States would suspend, even temporarily, its naval and air blockade were said to be those which were outlined in the draft resolution Ambassador Adlai Stevenson submitted to the Security Council Tuesday.

CONDITIONS

This would involve the sending to Cuba of a UN observer corps to assure that the missile bases were dismantled or, at the very least, that work now in progress on them was

Mrs. Fleming was within the marked crosswalk when the accident occurred, police said.

Anti-U.S. Shouts Heard Round Globe

LONDON (AP)—Anti-American demonstrators clashed repeatedly with police in running rallies throughout central London Wednesday night. An American flag was torn to pieces in one affray near the U.S. Embassy.

The demonstrators, many of them waving copies of the Communist Daily Worker, were attempting to stage a mass protest against the U.S. arms blockade of Cuba in Grosvenor Square in front of the U.S. Embassy building. The rally was called by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Crisis May Strengthen UN

Douglas Hopes Smaller Nations May Gain Controlling Power

By ED CONGROVE

A stronger United Nations—where uncommitted nations would dictate terms of disarmament to the leading powers—may emerge from the present Cuban crisis, New Democratic Party national leader T. C. Douglas said yesterday.

At a press conference following a hard-hitting speech

to the B.C. Federation of Labor convention at the Empress Hotel, Mr. Douglas said that if the world escaped a shooting war, a United Nations police force could well become a reality. This, he said, was the supreme test of the U.N.

He said the present crisis underlined the need for the "establishment of a rule of law... where no nation no matter how powerful, has the right to unilateral action."

Mr. Douglas said the Cuban crisis demonstrated the need to prevent the spread of nuclear armaments.

"This is the time for the United Nations to... demonstrate that it can cope with a major crisis," said Mr. Douglas.

He added that the Cuban situation may well see so far uncommitted nations line up in a bloc that might dictate disarmament terms to the big powers.

Successful intervention in the present crisis "will give these non-committed nations a sense of purpose and authority... It will be the first time they have succeeded in stopping the big powers," said Mr. Douglas.

In his speech Mr. Douglas blamed U.S. policy towards Cuba for creation of the present crisis.

He said he lacked the information to judge the merit of American claims, but felt the blockade should be undertaken by neutral countries.

"The story of Castro is one of a people's revolution over-

Notorious Canadian Arrested

NEW YORK — A titled madam who was deported from New York last April has been arrested in New York again on charges of illegal entry from her native Canada. Countess Elizabeth Spedding Maraca, former wife of Romanian Count Louis Maraca, was charged with entering the U.S. falsely only three months after her release from a federal women's reformatory. The countess was convicted two years ago on four Mann Act charges after the government charged that she shipped $300-a-night prostitutes to customers as far away as Venezuela. She was described as making up to $100,000 a year. A deportation hearing was scheduled today.

ROME — Mrs. Lex Barker, Swiss-born wife of American actor who once played Tarzan, died here of a heart attack. She was about 32 years old.

EDMONTON — Princess Alexandra, 25-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth, is to be invited to officiate at the opening of Edmonton's new Royal Alexandra Hospital in 1963.

VAN NUYS, Calif. — Amos Yeigh, 39, operator of a teenage night club, is being held without bail on a charge of murdering his attractive 16-year-old stepdaughter Terry Lee Yeigh.

PUNTA GORDA, Fla. — A man charged with speeding offered Judge J. T. Bow Jr. this excuse: His mother-in-law just spent a week with his family and he was returning her to her home. The judge fined the man $35.

VATICAN CITY — Most Rev. Aston Chichester, a Jesuit archbishop from Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, died here today after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. He was the third prelate to die since the Vatican ecumenical council opened Oct. 10.

PARIS — Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco and their two children returned to Paris to resume the vacation which the "little war" with France interrupted earlier this month.

OTTAWA — Homes owned by Mrs. Victor Sifton of Winnipeg

MONTREAL (CP) — George Watkins of Washington, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO), criticized an affiliate United States union Wednesday for "trying to tell Canadians what to do."

The criticism was levelled at the 900,000-member Maritime Trade Department of the AFL-CIO at the close of the three-day quarterly executive meetings here. Mr. Watkins is an executive member of the department.

ABSTAINED

The rebuff came as a resolution to condemn William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, as a "scab and strike-breaker." Mr. Watkins abstained from voting after questioning the department's right to come into Canada and tell Canadians what to do, or that what trade union movement they have developed is no good.

"If we attack Mr. Dodge, a duly elected officer of the CLC, then what we are doing amounts to a full-fledged attack on the CLC itself," he said.

Mr. Watkins said he also was concerned from the start about the federation's change of plans to meet in Montreal instead of Hawaii as originally scheduled. The federation arranged a meeting in Montreal at the same time as a Canadian federal inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Thomas G. Norris of Vancouver, was resumed into shipping violence on the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes system.

WASHINGTON — Nobel prize winning chemist Dr. Linus Pauling and a group of 254 persons from 27 countries lost a second attempt at stopping U.S. nuclear testing when a federal district court judge threw out their request for an injunction against President Kennedy.

OXFORD, Miss. — A shouting crowd of white students at the University of Mississippi blocked Negro James H. Meredith's exit from the student union briefly but federal marshals cleared a path allowing Meredith to leave.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Mrs. Mary Kolb celebrated her 88th birthday last week by cutting a new tooth. She's not especially elated over the distinction as the new tooth knocks her dental plate out of line.

NEWTON ABBOT, England — Richard Hyman was fined $2.80 for leaping off an express moving at 40 miles an hour. Hyman said he did it because the train was divided at the previous stop and his baggage was left behind.

OTTAWA — Commodore Robert P. Welland of Victoria and Ottawa has taken up the appointment as senior Canadian officer afloat, Atlantic, aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure. Capt. A. B. F. Fraser-Harris, formerly director of naval ship requirements, succeeds Commodore Welland as assistant chief of naval staff (air and warfare) at headquarters.

OTTAWA — Montreal underworld figure Frank Watson, 40, lay paralyzed in a hospital here may never walk again. Watson was found with his spine broken in three places at the base of a 40-foot cliff at Rockcliffe RCAF base. Police said Watson ran off the cliff in the dark as he fled air force security officers.

TOKYO — Premier Prince Norihiro Phouma of Laos arrived in Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam, to discuss the withdrawal of foreign troops from Laos.

Gromyko Visits The Wall

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Wednesday visited the Berlin wall and talked to East German border guards at the Brandenburg Gate. He was the first high-ranking Soviet statesman to visit the wall since it was built in August, 1961.

Gromyko renewed the Communist demand that Western troops get out of Berlin. He called for full recognition of East German sovereignty.

NO VIOLATION

The official East German news agency, ADN, said Gromyko made the statements in a speech to an East Berlin crowd after he toured the wall dividing the city.

Gromyko pledged that the Soviet Union would never allow the "slightest violation of the sovereign rights of East Germany."

He declared the Western powers had let it be known they were ready to acknowledge a certain part of the sovereignty of the East German Democratic Republic.

But the Soviet Union had given the answer: "No, the sovereignty of the German Democratic Republic must be fully and completely acknowledged," ADN quoted him as saying.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1962

The Main Hope

IN AN UNPRECEDENTED demonstration of unanimity the Western nations have solidly supported President Kennedy's bold step in "quarantining" Cuba. More than a few, indeed, displayed something akin to eagerness in stating their approval of the president's action.

Simultaneously all Latin-American members of the Organization of American States strongly endorsed the United States' decision with an open declaration that they would use collective armed strength if needed to block future shipments of Communist arms to Cuba.

Such wholehearted solidarity of opinion will doubtless strengthen the Washington administration's conviction that it has acted wisely in the best interests of the United States and its allies. If any doubts existed in President Kennedy's mind that the United States' stand on Cuba in 1962 still ranked with his British and French NATO partners, they are surely dissipated now.

Just as the West has declared itself so forcibly on the side of Mr. Kennedy, so it can be expected that the Communist and quasi-Communist nations will align themselves with Cuba and its Kremlin master, leaving only the neutralist and uncommitted countries to decide on their separate allegiances or unified course.

Nevertheless, even at this late hour, it can still be hoped that each of these alliances whether they be formed for aggression or for mutual defence, whether their intent is war or peace, fully realizes, collectively and individually, the gravity of the situation in which they are now placed and the heavy responsibility each must bear.

At this time it appears that the only solution to the impasse—if solution there be—can come from the United Nations, an organization to which all nations on all sides belong and to whose peaceful purposes each has pledged itself on behalf of its people.

Out of Step

YET ANOTHER Halloween season finds a lack of uniformity in fireworks regulations in Greater Victoria, and this time the fault seems to be solely that of city council. The three adjoining municipalities have achieved the goal recognized for years as desirable, exact similarity of rules governing the sale and use of fireworks. The city, however, is out of step.

As a result Victoria shops may start selling crackers and bombs and the like today; Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt shops not until Monday. In Victoria the fireworks can be legally set off in permissible places from today until midnight on Halloween; in the three other municipalities, only between noon and midnight on October 31.

Thus Victoria renders its neighbors' regulations far less effective than they could otherwise be, for starting today, many children whose local shops are barred from selling fireworks will simply obtain them in the city. And when it comes to setting them off, how many youngsters are able to recognize municipal boundaries, or give them a thought? How many are firmly under the control of parents who recognize their responsibility in this respect?

Most residents will agree that restriction of the Halloween fireworks season to the day itself is in the interest of the safety and comfort of the community. The city's comparative laxity spoils this effect and unfairly gives its shopkeepers an advantage over those beyond its borders.

Preferably, provincial law should confine sale and use of fireworks to a minimum, uniformly throughout British Columbia. But barring that, the local situation certainly demands a remedy before another year has flown.

A Decided Asset

VICTORIA is famous as a residential area, particularly in view of its mild climate, and the population figures cited by the regional planning board emphasize the value of retirement in this area.

A city noted as a centre for senior citizens may not loom as ideally geared for a dynamic future, although the school population discounts any apprehension in this respect, but they are a bulwark to the local economy.

What might be called the retirement industry may rival and exceed the tourist industry. It has the advantage also of being permanent and not subject to travelling whims.

More than 16 per cent of the capital region, according to last year's census, are 65 years and older; against this the national average is some 7 per cent. This illustrates the appeal of Victoria—meaning the combined quadruple area—for those retiring from active vocational life. If in some degree this may add to welfare and allied problems the advantage is cast mainly in the opposite direction.

Retired senior citizens bring with them an affluence not dependent on local industry. Probably no other city in Canada enjoys the collective income from outside sources as it is represented by those coming to spend their closing years here.

Their personal demands on civic services are small, living as they do for the most part in quiet enjoyment of climate and social amenity, nor do they add to the costs of education. They comprise a decided asset and lend a mature balance to the local scene. And simply by being here they provide work for other, younger persons.

It is not surprising, therefore, that some thought is being given to spreading the virtues of the Victoria area as a place in which to become retired senior citizens. They warrant being met on arrival with a welcome banner.

What Happened?

THOUGH disaster looms large on the international horizon and gloomy predictions on Canada's future economy are still being made at regular intervals, most faces in Victoria have been wearing their best smiles during the past week. The reason? Simply our beautiful weather.

But what happened to summer?

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

AMERICAN warships are ranging the seas with gunners at the alert. Coincidentally a letter comes to hand about a U.S. gunner in the crucial past who did our side a good turn.

In fact his vigilance may have saved many Canadian lives.

Nearby on the Trans-Canada Highway there lives an old warrior for whom, as he says, "time is running out." He will be 85 in December next and he has a tale to unfold. It has remained vivid in his memory for 45 years.

I feel disposed to pass it along; it may touch the chord of remembrance of some other veteran.

His story begins with being wounded and his return to Canada in 1917 aboard the SS. Olympic after several months in an English hospital. He arrived back in Halifax three weeks after the disastrous explosion that devastated the Nova Scotia capital.

Halifax looked "like a hill-side that had just been ploughed up."

But, he recounts, the Olympic would never have reached port had not an unknown American sailor had eyes like a hawk and the wit to go into instant action.

Three days out from England my correspondent sneaked up to the after end of the top deck. Like others before and after him he didn't like ship lectures and so took this means of dodging one. He wasn't supposed to be up beside the RNR chaps manning the Olympic's defensive 3.6 inchers, but he kept quiet. They were too busy to notice him.

For his part our returning warrior had his eyes fixed on the U.S. destroyer conveying the troopship as it overtook Olympic and closed within 20 feet. He was looking down on it and at the U.S. gunner. Suddenly the latter disappeared and flame spouted from the muzzle of his gun, there was "an awful bang," and a huge mass of water was thrown 30 feet above the deck. The stern of the destroyer rose 10 to 15 feet.

"Everyone was stunned," says my reader-veteran, "thinking we were torpedoed. But it was a mine, and only for that smart gunner on the destroyer spotting it, and hitting it before it was sucked down and exploded by the starboard propeller, we might all have been lost."

"Figure it out. We were going 19 knots, he was passing us at over 20, he had at most two seconds to aim and fire and hit that mine. Even to spot it was a feat."

My reader has been grateful ever since, and he wonders if the American sailor in question was ever decorated for his prompt and effective action.

"Maybe you could find out more," he adds. But I'm afraid I can't be of any help. This is a town full of shared experiences, however. There may be some other First War veteran who also returned aboard the Olympic on that memorable trip, and can recall the narrow escape related above.

There is one U.S. sailor, in any case, who holds a warm spot in the heart of a Canadian veteran of old. And this tale, because "time is running out," is put on record in his behalf.

The Packback

Smart Alecks

By GREGORY CLARK

If our highway traffic police take any pleasure in their work, other than enjoying life in the open air instead of in some bedevilled office or shop, it is in nailing the smart alecks who constitute a solid percentage of our motoring public.

"They may be these young squirts in convertibles," said a highway traffic officer with whom I shared the lunch counter, "or it could be one of these influential executive types in big cars who have a feeling of airy freedom from rules and regulations. But the way my mate and I discover them is a very simple. We are on a radar trap detail. After my mate has set up the radar equipment, I go up the highway five miles or so and keep watch on the traffic. It is no time until I catch somebody breaking the law in some small respect, and I haul him off to the side."

"I take my time about it. In fact, I draw it out as long as possible, noting down the particulars and questioning the offender. For, as long as I am standing there in full view on the roadside, every smart aleck who passes me figures he is now free of cops for some miles to come. And the minute he is over the hill, he lets her out for a little drag racing."

"And bingo! Right into the radar trap!"

A Fair But Stubborn Arbiter

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

ON September 27, when the House of Commons was going about the business of electing a Speaker, Prime Minister Diefenbaker recited the qualities which a good Speaker should have.

"His office requires courage, tact and great wisdom. His fidelity to Parliament and the things it stands for must be unquestioned, and in the dispatch of his duties his impartiality unquestionable. He must be one who understands human frailties, wiles, and above all he must be patient and have high intellectual qualities. His functions are to preside over this House, to be zealous in the maintenance of the privileges of Parliament, and to ensure that the rights of minorities and individual members are preserved. The discharge of these functions requires fairness and tact, firmness and impartiality, and it will not be lost sight of that we do have a number of minorities in this Parliament. The Speaker must maintain order amid the clashing sabres of debate. The Speaker must preserve inviolate the traditions of parliamentary government in principle as well as in spirit, for this is the traditional heritage of freedom."

About the only useful qualities missing from the prime minister's catalogue are flexibility, subtlety and a keen sense of humor. And some authorities regard wit as an essential requirement. It is doubtful if any Speaker in the history of the Canadian House of Commons can be said to have possessed all of these qualities. Some of the best had many, perhaps most, of them. At least a few survived, with little difficulty, despite the fact that they could claim remarkably few of these desirable and useful characteristics.

Before 1956, it didn't really matter much. The prestige of the office itself protected even the most inadequate incumbents against most parliamentary perils.

But the great pipeline debate of 1956 put an end to that comfortable situation.

During that year of parliamentary crisis, a Speaker was destroyed. And the prestige of the office was almost totally destroyed into the bargain.

Since 1956, the requirements of the office have gone sky-high. It has been well beyond the reach of the weak, incompetent partisan. To install such a Speaker would have been to invite certain disaster. And even a good Speaker has not been able to take survival for granted.

Former Speaker D. R. Michener, who performed with rare distinction through the last Parliament, was not a great rules technician. But he had most of the other desirable qualities in abundance. Even so, he stood on the edge of the abyss at several points during his speakership as a desperate Liberal minority tried to bring down the government.

The Speaker and the speakership. They considered it possible that the public might take to this small, courageous Opposition beset by a huge Conservative majority and by a partisan referee when they sought to protect the national interest. But in the end, due in large measure to Mr. Michener's general popularity, they put the project on ice.

Which brings us up to the present. Speaker Marcel Lambert has advantages which his predecessor lacked. He is perfectly bilingual. The prestige attached to the speakership before 1956 has been at least partially restored. Then too, it is more difficult for a large, powerful Opposition to attack the office of Speaker than it is for one that is weak and vulnerable.

It is too early yet, to judge Mr. Lambert's capabilities as a rulesmaster. No Speaker has mastered the rules in the short space of time Mr. Lambert has held office.

He is a serious man tending, at times, to severity. It is scrupulously fair in his decisions but shows, at times, a rigidity, an inflexibility, that invites challenge. If he has a keen sense of humor, he has kept it well concealed, though it must be said immediately that the conditions that have existed during his first few weeks in office have not been calculated to encourage its appearance. Lacking subtly himself, he sometimes fails to recognize it in others.

He accepted the office with definite ideas about how his responsibilities should be discharged. Dissatisfied with some of the practices which became prevalent during the regime of the easy-going and relaxed Mr. Michener, he has lost no time in trying to enforce a strict and stringent return to the rules—rules which Mr. Lambert himself does not yet have an easy and perfect familiarity. At the same time, his serious attempt to apply the rules, practices and precedents have aroused the hostility of Opposition parliamentarians who remember with affection the wide latitude they enjoyed under the urbane and dexterous Mr. Michener.

Had Mr. Lambert been elevated to the chair in the pre-1956 era, he might well have established an enviable reputation as a stern, sound, impartial arbiter. As it is he is fighting for survival.

from San Francisco

WITH only a few days of active campaigning to go before the election, Democrats in California are running scared. As the balance, according to many small indicators, tips in favor of Richard Nixon and against Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, their fears are not so much for 1962 as for '64 and the cloud no bigger than a man's hand on that distant horizon.

Airly talk about trends is risky and often absurd, as events in the recent past have proved. Yet the Democrats, as the party in power in a time of troubles, have been finding the blame for everything from Cuba to hiked-up sales taxes and frustrating traffic jams heaped on them. Out of this discontent November 6 may reveal that a trend was in the making.

The Democrats have 34 of the state governorships, the Republicans 16. Schools, highways, recreation areas—these and innumerable other services are the demand on each governor as the population explodes. At the same time most citizens complain bitterly about mounting local and state taxes. Hostility, coupled with a kind of numb apathy that equates both parties and all candidates as equally bad to indifferent, could mean for the Democrats a loss of eight or more of their governorships.

What would count most heavily, casting a long shadow in the direction of the presidency and '64, would be the loss of Nixon's vote.

Nixon's defeat would remove him from an active, office-seeking role in politics. He would return to the Los Angeles law practice in which, he boasts, he makes more income in a year and a half than he received in 14 years of government service. But if he is elected, his campaign manager predicts a majority of 400,000—he will once again be a power in his party and in the United States. That is what, in the light of 1964, makes the election in this the most populous of the 50 states, so important.

Defeated two years ago by a squeak of some 150,000 votes, Nixon has sworn that if elected, he will serve out his four years as governor. Giving him a score of 100 for sincerity as of today, the former vice-president will be under pressures that may well prove to be irresistible. For the following reasons the seasoned pros rate him as at least an event bet for the Republican nomination two years hence.

Half his party detests Rockefeller and the other half fears and detests Sen. Barry Goldwater. That is roughly the balance between moderate and right, and Nixon is the perfect swing man. He will be 50 years old in January, shortly after he is inaugurated as governor—if he is inaugurated. The waiting game, should it be prolonged, is a hazardous game. If Rockefeller were to be nominated and elected in 1964, Nixon would in all likelihood have to wait until 1972. So much can happen in 10 years and the thirst for power has no match.

The shrewd young men around Nixon pooh-pooh this. They say that Rockefeller has already moved so far and with such calculation that he is certain to get the nomination. You have to, they add, want it in capital of China.

"Why do I watch it? Why do I watch it? He wins 'em all—every one. But I've got to watch until Perry Mason loses a case. Let's face it, I'm hooked!"

South Africa

Awkward Demands

By BERTHA SOLOMON
from Johannesburg

IN the last month, two more or less government-established bodies have come up with awkward demands on the South African government.

First, the 27-member Council for Colored Affairs has demanded that since there is apartheid in South Africa, the government should make it real as far as the "Coloreds" are concerned. (Coloreds are South Africans of mixed blood.)

Concretely, the council is asking for separate Colored waiting rooms, Colored seats in parks for their use only, and so on.

It is amazing, if logical enough, demand in the circumstances. But its quantity lies in the fact that not even the government can call the Colored council "bothersome" (the usual government phrase), to discredit apartheid. For it is the government that supports the council. Most of the Coloreds boycotted the election for it.

The second disconcerting demand has come from the Transkei, the newly established Bantustan. The government show window of apartheid to the world.

There, Chief Kaiser Matanzima, chairman of the Transkeian territorial authority, presented on behalf of the emigrant Tembus (those who live outside the Transkei) a memorandum to a commission of inquiry that is now sitting. The commission is looking into the teaching of the two official languages (English and Afrikaans) in the Transkei.

The memorandum said that since the Transkei would soon make its own laws, it should now be allowed to choose the language to be taught in its schools.

It made it clear that, of the two official languages, the Bantus wanted English, not Afrikaans as the medium of instruction. An awkward poser for the government.

To add to the government's troubles, the county is suffering from the worst drought in many years. The farmers, who are the government's main supporters, are badly off, but the African areas are the worst hit.

Newspapers have been talking of near-famine conditions and starvation. This the government denies. But it admits that there is considerable malnutrition. Also it is taking steps to help the nation by distributing milk powder in some areas, and Zululand it is providing money for relief work.

Apart from the results of this particular drought, however, there is almost chronic underfeeding among most Africans, because of their ignorance of proper feeding and also because their wages, particularly those of unskilled workers, are too low.

This malnutrition is arousing the national conscience and recently there have been many rallies in all African pay scales. But wages have still not caught up to the cost of living.

The government has launched a highly necessary scheme of health education for Africans. But the time is coming when the government itself will have to take steps to raise wage levels. The responsibility is the government's, for it probably is the biggest employer of African labor.

Recently the Methodist Church in South Africa, after some consideration, came out with a significant statement. It has repudiated all racial discrimination and has pledged itself to promote friendship and inter-racial worship.

The significance lies in the fact that the Methodist Church is second in size only to the Dutch Reformed Church. The Anglican Church and the Roman Catholic Church, the third and fourth largest, are both fundamentally non-racial, while the Presbyterian Church, next in size, recently passed a resolution calling on its members to increase their multi-racial contacts.

These four churches are mainly English speaking and these moves may have some effect in lessening the prejudices of their members, many of whom are as intolerant of African aspirations as the Nationalists. The churches appear to be moving faster than the people and the politicians in facing the inescapable facts of racial interdependence in South Africa.

Oriental Festival Attracts Throng

Each year, the Chinatown Lions Club sponsors Lantern Festival to raise money for charitable activities. Here, Mrs. Dorothea Mar, sells tickets for draw on blonde "Yum Yum doll" with hand-made brocade Chinese dress and one regular dress.

Chinese Affair Popular

Oriental atmosphere of the Chinese Lantern Festival drew hundreds of people to the Club Sirocco yesterday.

VARIED STALLS

Crowds mingled to pass delicatessen stalls full of assorted Chinese cookies and sesame seed wafers, curio stalls with pot-bellied Buddha statues, chop sticks and miniature clay teapots with cups and tray.

Some tried their luck at "panning for gold" at a stand where a person can win a piece of gold worth about 35 cents if he chooses the right sand-filled vial.

BOUGHT GOLD

This idea was thought up by Eric Joe, past president of the Chinatown Lions Club which sponsors the Lantern Festival. Mr. Joe, a resident engineer for the parks branch at Barkerville, bought $120 worth of gold particles from prospectors at Barkerville, to hide in sand in the little bottles.

PAGEANT

Highlight of the festival was an historical pageant based on the origin and early life of Victoria's Chinatown district.

A Lions Club official said during the afternoon session he was pleased with the heavy attendance. The festival was held in two sessions, 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 11 p.m.

Douglas Hope:

Strength from Crisis

throwing one of the bloodiest, most corrupt regimes . . .

This was North America's chance to act as guide to steer the revolution into a form of democratic government.

But the Eisenhower administration threw the chance away when Castro expropriated properties of the United Fruit Co. and Standard Oil Co., he said.

"I don't believe in shedding blood to make the world safe for Standard Oil and United Fruit," Mr. Douglas said, amid thunderous applause.

He said American boycotts of Cuba following these actions had forced that country to turn to the Soviet Union for markets, supplies and weapons.

"The policies followed on this continent pushed them into the arms of the Soviet Union."

He charged the Soviet Union with a "diservice to humanity" if, as it is claimed, they have set up missile bases in Cuba.

At the same time he termed American action "precipitate" in instituting the blockade and said the entire question "should have gone to the United Nations."

"The blockade has brought the world close to nuclear holocaust . . . now we will see if the United Nations can function when the two greatest powers in the world are threatening to spring at each others' throats."

He told delegates that Canada had two jobs before it . . . "To persuade the four nuclear club nations to disarm, and to do everything possible to prevent membership from spreading . . .

"The situation calls on all of us to keep cool heads and balanced judgment."

The socialist leader denied he was "pro-Soviet" and said he hoped to see United Nations order dismantling of "all missile bases."

" . . . If we are uncomfortable with (missile) bases 50 miles away, how do you think the people of the Soviet Union felt ringed with nuclear bases in Pakistan, Spain, Turkey and Scotland? . . . Maybe the Soviet Union felt uncomfortable too."

ONE FUNCTION

"One function of the UN is to say to these two giants 'you are endangering the peace of the world, we are ordering you to dismantle all these bases'."

He said the main danger facing the world was that "these two giants" will "get into a position they can't retreat from . . . Our first job is to prevent any incident that would press the trigger" that would "precipitate a war."

CHESS, NOT POKER

During the press conference, Mr. Douglas said, in answer to a question about whether the entire crisis had been precipitated as a means of getting these nuclear missile bases open to debate at the UN.

"Russians play chess . . . not poker . . . they are always six moves ahead. It would be a way of bringing this subject into the UN."

Asked whether he believed the political climate in the United States may have prompted President Kennedy's action, Mr. Douglas said:

GREAT RESPECT

"I don't like to think there were political motivations behind this."

He said he had read a New York Times' comment that politics and the up-coming November Congressional elections may have sparked the "quarantine" of Cuba.

"I have great respect for Kennedy . . . I wouldn't like to think he is shooting craps with the destiny of mankind."

WORLD POLICE

He said the new, more authoritative United Nations that could emerge from the present crisis would fit in with "world police force" envisaged.

That force, he said, would intercede to halt all wars, without waiting for "invitations" to intercede, as in the case of the current China-India conflict, where India has requested the United Nations to stay out.

"India, with great alacrity, has not refrained from referring everyone's problems to the UN. 'Now, he said, they were stating that 'this is a private fight, stay out.'" hundred bobbies. There was a second clash at Shaftesbury Avenue and a third near Piccadilly.

Earlier in the day 200 bottles-throwing Russian students charged the American Embassy in Moscow as Soviet protests mounted against the "flagrant" U.S. arms blockade of Cuba.

INK BOTTLES

At least four ink bottles smashed against the shuttered, nine-storey building, leaving long stains of red ink on the facade.

A stone also was thrown at the car of American Ambassador Foy D. Kohler, hitting its side as it moved slowly through the crowd of students chanting "viva Cuba" and "shame on the Yankees."

The youth who threw the stone was chased by a policeman for 40 yards and brought down with a flying tackle.

The embassy demonstration was the first major outburst of protest outside the building since April, 1961, when stones and bottles were hurled at its walls by a big Soviet crowd protesting against the abortive Cuban invasion.

The demonstrations coincided with anti-blockade protests in Ireland, Sweden, Denmark, Japan, Brazil and Argentina.

In Stockholm, more than 100 demonstrators sat outside the U.S. Embassy. They attempted to present a letter of protest but were turned down.

In Copenhagen, police were called out when 400 demonstrators appeared outside the U.S. Embassy. There were no incidents.

In Tokyo, about 60 students gathered in front of the U.S. Embassy, snake-dancing, shouting slogans and blocking traffic. There were no incidents.

In Rio de Janeiro, 1,000 students appeared in front of the Brazilian foreign office carrying posters reading: "Go home, cowardly Yankees," "starvation blockade" and "Yankee intervention is military provocation."

On this point, the defence department announced that new reconnaissance disclosed between eight and 10 missile bases in Cuba, containing at least 30 missiles and more than 20 IL-28 Soviet jet bombers. It estimated Soviet personnel in Cuba at about 5,000.

BASES HAVE ROCKETS

Assistant Defence Secretary Arthur Sylvester said there are eight to 10 missile bases located near these cities, each having about four rocket launchers:

Guanajay near the border of Havana and Pinar del Rio province in northwest Cuba; Remedios in Las Villas province, central Cuba; San Cristobal in Pinar del Rio province, western Cuba; and Sagua la Grande, in Las Villas province, north central Cuba.

The Pentagon also said it has new aerial reconnaissance photographs of ballistic missile bases in Cuba "even more revealing" than the first ones. Some of the new series of pictures were described as having been made at comparatively low level.

States of measures it had taken for its own and hemisphere security without any airtight assurance, under rigid inspection that the build-up had stopped.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has said that he would, under no circumstances, permit any UN observers to come in and meddle with his security arrangements.

ENVOY QUOTED

Thant used the occasion to appeal urgently to Premier Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos, citing words of Cuban Ambassador Mario Gargia-Inchaustegui earlier this week:

"Were the United States able to give us proof, by word and deed, that it would not carry out aggression against our country, then, we declare solemnly before you here and now, our weapons would be unnecessary and our army redundant."

REQUEST OF MANY

Thant urged the two world leaders to seize this point of agreement and order negotiations. He said he was acting at the request of "a large number" of UN members—45 non-aligned countries—who have been intensely active for the last few days in trying to find a solution of the deadlock between the U.S. and Russia.

After Thant's speech, U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson proposed an adjournment until today for study of the secretary-general's proposal. Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister and council president for October, declared the motion carried.

Thant said: "I hope that at this moment, not only in the council chamber but in the world outside, good sense and understanding will be placed above the anger of the movement or the pride of nations."

"The path of negotiation and compromise is the only course by which the peace of the world can be secured at this critical moment."

UN Last Chance In Peace Quest

The United Nations is essentially a people-to-people organization rather than a nation-to-nation one, a Victoria journalist said yesterday.

ONLY COUNTERBALANCE

Richard Bower, editor-in-chief of the Colonist and a past president of the Victoria branch of the United Nations Association, told about 80 persons at an association tea yesterday that "for all its weaknesses and failings" the UN provides the world's only counterbalance to struggles and ill-feeling among nations.

He said "many of us believe the UN is the only—perhaps the last chance for the world."

TROUBLOUS DAYS

He did not allude to the current Cuban crisis other than to say mankind must look to the UN "in the troublous days we now are in."

The association tea in the Pacific Club and the forenoon raising of the UN flag over the Causeway marked the 17th anniversary of the United Nations. Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell and the band of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, attended the flag-raising.

RELIES ON PEOPLES

Mr. Bower read a UN Day message from UN Acting Secretary General U Thant with a theme similar to Mr. Bower's—that the UN really relies on the peoples of the world for support, not on governments.

Mr. Bower cited the United Nations charter preamble which begins, "We, the peoples of the United Nations . . ."

"As individuals . . . we cannot escape our personal responsibility" to the UN, he said. "Goodwill can only exist between nation and nation when it exists between man and man."

It's Still Stealing —Court

Some people seem to think that shoplifting is not stealing but they are wrong, Magistrate William Ostler told a mother of five children yesterday morning.

He fined Stella Neil, 3106 Washington, $35 for stealing a $10.95 sweater from Spencer's Stores Ltd. on Oct. 11.

Mrs. Neil was almost inaudible as she whispered her plea of "guilty" to the charge.

Detective Richard Berry told the court that when he questioned Mrs. Neil she said she did not know why she stole the sweater.

"You know," said Mr. Ostler, "I think there is a tendency on the part of some people to think shoplifting is not stealing, to make a mental distinction between the two. Shoplifting is . . . theft."

A car-truck collision at the intersection of Fernwood and Pagoda at 2:15 p.m. yesterday sent two people to hospital for treatment of minor injuries. "Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He will be here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here today and tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Victoria today and tomorrow, October 25 and 26.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he himself will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hair worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. today and tomorrow at the Hotel Sussex.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge of obligation by seeing me," directs Harrison. "Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you must regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late! Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth of the organization behind it. Harrison and his affiliates maintain treatment clinics in Canada, the U.S., Mexico, and And. Their staff trichologists regularly do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Free-tried photographs made four months apart.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's tried everything. So he starts consulting himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today.

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Harrison in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex, today and tomorrow between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Harrison's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Diefenbaker Landed

Voice of Women To Wire Summit?

Leaders of the 200-member Victoria branch of the Voice of Women were up in arms yesterday about the crisis in Cuba.

They sent a telegram to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, congratulating him for suggesting that a neutral fact-finding commission be sent to Cuba.

OTHER MESSAGES

They may also send messages to President Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev, said Mrs. Dorothy Penney, secretary-treasurer of the Voice of Women.

"The important question is not whether President Kennedy is right or wrong, but whether one nation has the right to take unilateral action when it might mean the destruction of the world," she said.

NO POWER

"The United Nations should have the power to stop the United States, Cuba, or anyone doing wrong. But all the UN can do is talk."

"I can see why the United States went ahead. The UN has no police force. But if we are going to destroy the world, then all of us should help decide, not just one nation," Mrs. Penney said.

Text of the telegram sent to Prime Minister Diefenbaker under the name of Ena McMordie, president of the Voice of Women here:

"Congratulations for your suggestion of neutral fact-finding commission in Cuba. Hope you will insist on its acceptance. It would be tragic to plunge the world into war because of a possible blunder in intelligence."

DOUBTS ABOUT MISSILES

Another spokesman for the Voice of Women was asked about the meaning of the words "possible blunder in intelligence." She said doubts still exist about the presence of guided missiles in Cuba, and that "it would only take one fanatic to start a war."

Test Shot Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission Wednesday announced a second 24-hour delay in the high-altitude nuclear test shot which had been set for Wednesday night in the Pacific. "Technical reasons" were given.

Highland Games Group Elects William Marshall

The Victoria Highland Association has elected L. J. Wallace honorary president and William Marshall president.

Ian Duncan is vice-president; William Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Gaby Hebbes, secretary and John Robinson, Ernest Costain, Thomas Smith and Gertie Brown, executive members.

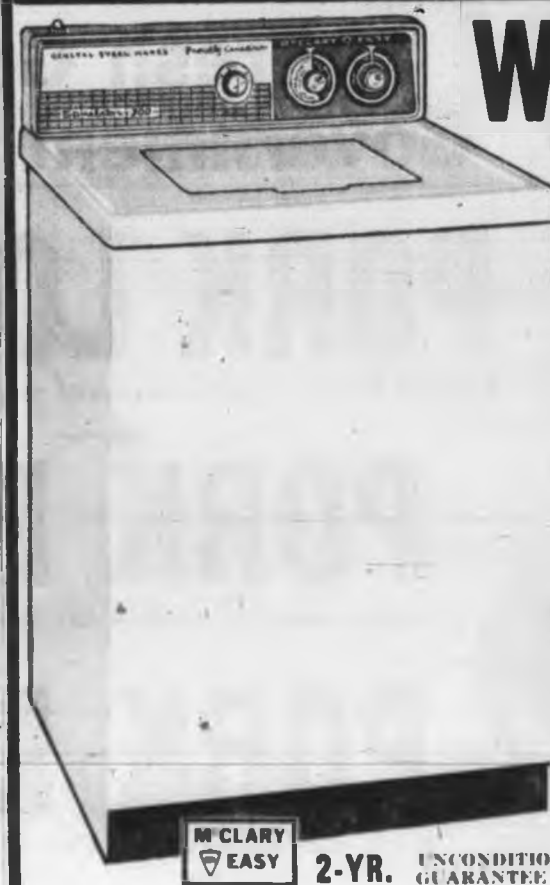

Executive members serving for another year are Harold Williams, Mrs. Lilian Davies and Kenneth Munro. Trustees elected are Stuart Kennedy, Alex MacLeod Baird and Archibald Stevenson.

Past president Stuart Kennedy gave the report of operations and said this year's centennial highland games were one of the highlights, adding that, in spite of sharply increased attendance, the association "broke even." He and his wife were presented with a token of esteem.

Spirituals 'In?'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A member of the American delegation to the Ecumenical Council Wednesday said Negro spirituals could become part of Roman Catholic church services in some parts of the United States.

The Rev. Frederick McManus, a professor of canon law at the Catholic University in Washington and an expert on liturgy, said the question of the use of the spirituals at evening services has come up in the United States.

COULD BE ADAPTED
"At a meeting in Chicago," he told a news briefing, "Somebody said, if missionary countries have local customs, why not have spirituals?"
"It is conceivable that they could be adapted for evening services. This would be a great development."

We Can't Be Alone In Defence

big powers in the development, manufacture or purchase of major weapons, either defensive or offensive, especially in the areas of rocketry and nuclear warheads.

But they do not lead to neutrality.

Up to Aggressor

Strategically, we are in a sort of no-man's-land between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. Neutrality is not a matter to be decided by pious aspiration. In the last analysis, the decision rests with the aggressor. Ask the Belgians or the Dutch.

Morally, we cannot command the protection of our friends unless we are willing to pull our weight, however modest our effort may be. And we cannot hinder in any way the efforts of our friends to protect themselves, as well as us.

Exactly That

It would be folly to assume, in any event, that any future war, major or brushfire, would necessarily be fought with rockets and nuclear warheads. We cannot rely on nuclear deterrents alone.

There is much to the theory that the nuclear deterrent is exactly that. This does not lead to the conclusion that there will be no more wars, but to this assumption: that if war comes, it may well be fought with more or less conventional forces, armed with the latest and best conventional weapons.

Canada Can Count

In this class of war and in UN peacemaking, Canada can count for something. She is bound both by morality and by common sense to count for all that she can.

Outside Europe, possible points of conflict between East and West are in rough and even primitive country—the Canadian North, Asia, Africa, South America.

This underlines the need for a highly trained force, with weapons of light weight and high fire-power and with ample land, sea, air and amphibious transport.

Lessons of History

The phrase used to describe this type of force in the Second World War was "combined operations." This implied co-operation between three separate and semi-independent services. The lessons of modern war for quick decisions dictate that an up-to-date combined operation be carried out by a single force under one command.

With such a force, Canada could supply security and overall command for bases within its borders, and standby reserves for both NATO and the UN.

Firms to Aid Smoke Fight

PENICTON (CP) — Three major industries here will be asked to "co-operate with council and the B.C. Research Council in eliminating smoke nuisance to the city." Mayor Finerty said he will discuss air pollution with Penicton Sawmills, Canadian Canners Western Ltd. and the CPR.

Polio Paralysis Severe for Two

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of the four persons in Canada known to have contracted polio after taking Sabin oral polio vaccine suffered severe permanent paralysis, says Health Minister Monteth.

The other two suffered moderate paralysis and at last examination were showing much improvement.

Father McManus emphasized that such action would have to have the prior approval of the Vatican.
LITURGY REFORMS
The Ecumenical Council is discussing the question of reforms in liturgy, the form of prayers, acts and ceremonies of public rites, including the mass. Such topics as spirituals, officiating at mass by the Congo to the booming of tom-toms, or not painting the devil black in African countries, all come within this field of discussion.

Miss Victoria Flies To Model Contest

Miss Victoria, Synnove Pettersen, left Victoria for Montreal by plane last night to take part in the finals of a Canada-wide fashion model contest. She was sponsored in the contest by a Victoria department store.

Canadian Icebreaker Sets Three Records

OTTAWA (CP) — The powerful Canadian icebreaker John A. Macdonald established three records this year during the transport department's 1962 Arctic supply operation. The ship sailed farther north than any other vessel in the waters of the Canadian archipelago, made the first passage through sections of the Norwegian Bay and Belcher Channel and became the only ship to circumnavigate Prince of Wales Island.
The department said Wednesday that its ships in 1962 ranged over a greater area than ever before. Canadian Coast Guard vessels and other supply ships handled a total of 100,000 tons of cargo during the operation.
Prior to this year the most northerly point in the archipelago reached by a Canadian icebreaker — the "d'Arville" — was Eureka, the site of a joint Canadian-United States weather station on the west coast of Ellesmere Island, 2,350 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Milestone in Conservation

OTTAWA (CP) — The founding convention of the Canadian Wildlife Federation here Nov. 2 is considered by Canadian sportsmen to be the most important milestone in the history of Canada's conservation movement.

Twenty-one delegates, representing 150 associations with a total membership in excess of 150,000 outdoor sportsmen, will attend the two-day meeting to ratify a constitution, elect officers and delegate authority to hire an executive director.

The founding convention is the result of action undertaken one year ago at the Resources for Tomorrow conference in Montreal. At that time a unanimous decision of intent to form a national body was expressed by sportsmen delegates.

A five-man working committee under chairman Stan Hodgkins of Terrace Bay, Ont., president of the Ontario Federation of Hunters and Anglers, worked out preliminary details during the year.

Mr. Hodgkins said Wednesday in a press release the major purpose of the organization will be "to promote the cause of conservation throughout Canada. The body will also assist provincial affiliates in working for sound renewable resource management with emphasis on the welfare of wildlife."

He said "many contend that the immediate benefits of the Canadian Wildlife Federation make this occasion comparable to the birth of the national labor or farm movements."

Campaigns to promote "more healthful outdoor activity participation by Canadian adults" will be instituted and "special emphasis" would be placed on encouraging the national interest of the nation's youth, in our wildlife and to "instill in them the principles of good sportsmanship."

In attendance at the convention will be representative of the National Wildlife Federation, the United States Sportsmen's Association, and the National Rifle Association.

The head office of the federation will be established here. Walter Dinsdale, minister of northern affairs and natural resources is expected to address the closing dinner Nov. 3.

Welsh Defeat Canadians In 'Lively' Rugby Match

EBRW VALE, Wales (Reuters) — A touring Canadian rugby team played its first game under the lights Wednesday night and was beaten 18-8 by a combined Newbridge-Ebbw Vale team.

The game was one of the liveliest seen here in many years. The Canadians lost their fourth four game by two goals, one penalty goal and one try.

Taking advantage of handling mistakes by the Welsh backs, the Canadians set up a series of attacks in which their centres, Jim Stubbs and Bob

Clarke, both of Vancouver, made several dangerous raids. A penalty against the Welsh side enabled Harrie Burnham of the Canadians to land an easy goal. They followed up with one of the best movements of the game when Vancouver's Dave Frid took the ball over under the posts for Burnham to convert.

After the half there was a good deal of pressure by the combined side.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

B.C. Lions, it says here, will be in the Western Conference playoffs if they can beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers on Saturday. It does not say here that they can make it three in a row over the Grey Cup champions.

In any event, the second last Saturday of the scheduled football season is a match-maker's dream. The two clubs arguing about the third playoff spot have to face the two clubs quarrelling over first place and no one will be letting down. Both Bombers and Calgary Stampeders want that playoff bye just as badly as the Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders want to be a playoff club.

There is an excellent chance that the Stampeders will give the Lions the help they need by beating the Roughriders in Calgary. Stampeders have no chance for first place if they lose, and they start the game as the hottest club in the Canadian Football League.

Stampeders have won five of their last six games, losing only to Toronto while beating the Lions, Bombers, Edmonton Eskimos, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders. The Calgary club has averaged 29 points a game for the six games despite having to do without fullback Earl Sanford for most of them, and coach Bobby Dobbs has an outfit which seems to be improving every game.

Roughriders have been the season's biggest and, to most fans everywhere, most pleasant surprise. But despite their showing they still have to be a bit suspect as a bona fide championship threat. Good coaching and determination have made up for a certain lack of talent but there is no substitute for talent when it gets down to cases. The Riders have a fine defensive line but are susceptible to the long pass. Their offence is far from consistent and the records show that with a game average of 17 points they are the lowest scoring club in the CFL. They may crank up another big effort Saturday but the odds are with the Lions in this one.

Whether or not they will be with the Lions at Empire Stadium the same evening is another matter. They likely won't, but it won't be because the Lions have already beaten the Bombers twice in a row.

It's a ridiculous assumption that the odds are against the Lions because they don't figure to beat the champions three times straight. True, the odds on that before the season started would have been quite sizeable but the first two victories have been achieved and the odds on the third game should be no worse than they were on the first game.

It is true, of course, that having been beaten twice by the Lions the proud Bombers will have an added incentive for this game. But this can be cancelled out by the fact that the Lions will start their most important game of the season with the knowledge that the task is not exactly impossible. Saturday's game at Empire Stadium will be decided on the merits of the two clubs that night and not on what has happened before.

That makes the Bombers justifiable favorites. They have been spotty at times this season and there are indications that their dynasty is nearing its end as age takes its toll and opposition gets tougher but they can draw on experience and resourcefulness to make the difference in the clutch. Winning, like losing, is a habit hard to overcome.

However, the Lions have at least shown the makings of a good club in their games this season. At their best, they are as good as the Bombers and while the Bombers are not often below par, the Lions have at least as good a chance of winning as have the Roughriders at Calgary. And if it comes down to the Riders and Lions settling matters a week from Saturday, I'll take the Lions.

But win or lose, and at the risk of being repetitious, this has been the Lions' best season.

It has been a season which has seen them break in such fine newcomers as Tom Larche, Mack Barton, Mike Martin and Gary Scherfeger and uncover a future quarterbacking prospect in Mel Mellin. It has been a season in which they acquired Canadian halfback Ron Howell and Dick Fouts, a defensive end who becomes a Canadian for next season, and which saw Canadian Walt Billicki develop into a fine line-backer. Joe Kapp's knee has taken 14 games of pounding and the former California star, is starting to look like a quarter-back as well as a passer and the rookies of last season—Tom Brown, Barney Thierren, Pat Clardine, Ian Hagemoen and Bob Belak—have had that important second year of seasoning.

Best of all, the Lions are no longer wandering aimlessly in a football forest. They have acquired direction at the top, have decided on a system of play and are recruiting talent for the system under and ability and has been given two more years to get his club out of the woods. This time, "next year" is no defiantly hopeful phrase. It's closer to a warning and, I hope, may not even have to be said.

Fleming Gets Blame For Hockey Fracas

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens accused Reg Fleming of Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night of being the instigator in a fracas during a National Hockey League game at Chicago Tuesday night.

Oak Bay Takes Top

By NEILL GADES

Inter-high school soccer was full of shutouts and surprises yesterday.

Oak Bay grabbed the top spot with a 1-0 victory over Mount View on the Bay's home field. At Esquimalt, the Dockers dealt Mount Douglas a 2-0 defeat to win their first game of the year. In an exhibition match at Claremont, the Victoria High Tyees decisively beat the home team, 5-0. Playing a scoreless first half

Little League Meeting Set

Annual meeting of the North and Central Saanich Little League will be held tonight at 8 in the School Board office in Sidney. Parents of boys playing Little League baseball are urged to attend.

THE PALMER METHOD

by Arnold Palmer

BALL PLACEMENT IS PLENTY IMPORTANT

A ball placed toward the left toe, as in illustration #1, becomes airborne quickly and doesn't have much backspin. Place the ball forward this way for drives and long shots.

The mid-iron's (Nos. 4, 5 & 6) full shot calls for ball at stance center (see illustration #2). In this position, the ball gets backspin and won't fly high.

The ball, placed back toward your right foot (see illustration #3), becomes a low-flyer. Place it in this way when you want the clubface to strike the ball first, as in wet weather, where you don't want wet grass to come between the ball and clubface to muffle the shot.

A handy guide for beginners! To get your copy, send 10¢ and stamped, return envelope to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

stitches—not 35 as previously reported—on the forehead.

Blake, stopping over here before returning to Montreal, said Fleming rammed Tremblay into the boards when Tremblay didn't have the puck and was out of the play.

"That's what started it," said Blake. "Tremblay then swung with his stick and broke it across Fleming's arm. They kept swinging and milling about from there and I didn't see the actual blow that caused the injury."

Canadiens did not learn that NHL president Clarence Campbell plans to hold a hearing into the matter until the Chicago train arrived at Toronto.

Tremblay, wearing a head bandage and two darkened eyes, didn't want to discuss the matter but finally allowed newspaper photographers to take his picture.

The hearing will be at Montreal Saturday night, the same night Black Hawks are in town to play Canadiens.

Referee Frank Udvari imposed match penalties on each player, carrying automatic $100 fines.

Royal Roads Runner Wins Island Race

Rigid training and stamina helped Royal Roads runner Barry Morgan win the Island Invitational cross-country meet at Victoria High School yesterday. Morgan ran the 3½-mile course in 17 minutes 47 seconds.

Following close behind came Vic High's Alan Valiant with a time of 17:51 while teammate Earl Speakman clocked 18:11 to place third.

With more than 100 runners participating, the competition was tough but the Royal Roads team managed to take first place with 25 points while the Vic High team came second with 31 points and third place Shawnigan Lake gathered 57 points.

View Royal Awaits Library Use

The question, "Why has city council done nothing to expedite library facilities for View Royal?" went unanswered at the Greater Victoria library board meeting Tuesday.

View Royal residents have been waiting for nearly a year since negotiations started to make the facilities of the Victoria Public Library available to them.

AWAIT BYLAW
"City council has approved in principle, I believe," said head librarian John Lort. "It is just a matter of the city solicitor drawing up the bylaw and having it passed."

The only way people in View Royal can borrow books at the present time is by mail from the Public Library Commission, a provincial department.

TAX PLAN
"We had hoped to have this settled before the school year started last September," Irvine Dawson, principal, View Royal Elementary School, told the Council last night.

"The school board agreed to add the tax on to the school tax of the taxpayers in View Royal," he continued. "It was estimated at about $1.50 to $2 per piece of property."

OTHERS CONTRIBUTE
"Esquimalt, Saanich, Oak Bay and Central Saanich all contribute and can use the facilities of the library," he said.

"It's been actively on the go for a year," he said in conclusion, "and in the meantime the students can't use the Bookmobile and we can't use the Public Library."

Stable Fire Not Arson Say Police

City detectives have discounted the possibility that someone had tried to set a fire in the Tally-Ho stables on Wilson Street Tuesday night.

Firemen were called to investigate what was believed to be an arson attempt in a shed on the property.

Investigating detectives said it was more like the work of hoboes who were using the building as a drinking spot.

Recording Evidence Admitted

SASKATOON (CP) — A wire recording of a conversation between two Saskatoon police officers and two men accused of conspiring to offer them bribes Wednesday was allowed to go before a Court of Queen's Bench jury.

ARGUMENT

The recording had been the subject of argument previously, with the jury excluded, at the trial of George Patrick Sommerville, 31, former Saskatoon Crown prosecutor, and Steve Kaylich, 30, of Calgary, on charges of conspiracy to operate a common gaming house and conspiracy to offer bribes to police.

The jury was told the recording was made on the evening of last Dec. 10 in a car at the rear of 869 University Drive. Previously the court had been told by police witnesses that it was on that occasion Sommerville and Kaylich offered bribes to morality Sgt. Louis Langford and Det. Keith Mackie.

POCKET RECORDER

The recording was made by Sgt. Langford who Wednesday told court he used a miniphone wire recorder concealed in his suit coat pocket. The microphone was in the form of a dummy wrist watch and had a wire leading up his arm to the recorder.

'Let's Keep Graduation'

City high school students are unhappy with a school board decision to change the name of "graduation ceremonies" to something a little more accurate. They were equally unenthusiastic about a further proposal to move the graduation date to after the final examinations have been written.

Eileen Rantz, 17, of 1611 Warren Gardens, a Grade 12 student, said everyone should have the opportunity to see a real graduation. Russell Ko, 15, of 1231 Hillside, a Grade 10 student, said if the name were changed there would be no real graduation for those who deserve it. Audrey Gelling, 16, of 2350 Forbes, a Grade 12 student, said she thinks it is a good idea to have the graduation ahead of time. Scott Davies, 17, of 1720 Fairfield, a grade 11 student, went against the general grain of opinion. He said it is better to write the exams first and then enjoy the graduation.

Western Europe, Free Asia Support Kennedy Blockade

LONDON (UPI) — Western Europe, most of free Asia and all major Latin American nations except Brazil Wednesday supported the United States blockade of Cuba.

Almost the only dissenting opinions came from countries of the Communist bloc or the uncommitted nations which called for an emergency meeting of the United General Assembly to consider the blockade and the threat to world peace.

FORMAL PLEDGE
France, which had indicated its support earlier, issued a formal communique pledging support for President Kennedy's policy. Britain, which had done so earlier, asked its shipping to comply with U.S. Navy orders. West Germany said it is ready to take all necessary measures.

The Philippines said it will back the United Nations all the way in its effort to prevent war. Neutral India, under attack by Communist China, reacted harshly against the quarantine, mirroring the common fear that the U.S. action might throw the Soviet Union on the side of Red China.

CASTRO DEFENDED
Brazil and Bolivia remained the only outspoken defenders of the Castro regime in Latin America. Chile seemed ready to break relations with Havana. Uruguay appeared evenly divided on the crisis. Mexico is expected to change its pro-Cuban policy because of the missile threat. All other governments approved Kennedy's action.

World Law Scorned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Norman MacKenzie, former president of the University of British Columbia and an international law expert, says law isn't going to affect the Cuban situation.

"Forget about the law—let's look at the facts," he said in an interview.

"From the point of view of the U.S. this is not a question of right or wrong. This is a practical situation and a damn dangerous one."

Dr. MacKenzie said international law wasn't important or effective during the Second World War.

"It was mainly used to justify certain courses of action."

"If you want to settle matters by international law, then you don't build missile bases."

Africa and the Middle East acted with less enthusiasm for the quarantine. The African El Azam said "only a miracle could save world peace."

Paradise Sour-Batista

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI) — Former Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista said Tuesday night Fidel Castro's plans to create a Cuban paradise have turned sour.

"I hope the statesmen of the world have enough cleverness now to solve this difficult situation," Batista said in one of his rare interviews since Castro overthrew him in January, 1959.

Canadians Needn't Flee

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Green said Wednesday that there is "no need" to ask Canadian citizens living in Cuba to return home.

"So far they have been properly treated," he said.

He confirmed that "nothing objectionable" had been discovered in a Cuban plane which was searched at Gander, Nfld. Tuesday night. The inspection, he said, had nothing to do with the quarantine on Cuba.

Canada's position of normal trade with Cuba "remains the same," Trade Minister Hees said.

Normal trade does not include strategic goods or United States goods trans-shipped through Canada.

Defence Minister Harkness said the normal rotation of Canadian military personnel between Europe and Canada has been delayed until the Cuban situation is clarified.

Toxic Hair Spray on Sale Here

An allegedly poisonous hair spray recently caused the near death of a seven-year-old Pasadena, Calif. boy, and a similar spray is on sale in Victoria department stores.

The container bears the following warning: "Spray only in well-ventilated area... Avoid inhalation of spray mist."

Keep container out of reach of children.

So far, no toxic effects of this or other hair sprays have been reported to Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health.

These facts emerged after a Colonist investigation:

All cosmetics on sale in Canada have to be approved by the food and drugs department of the national department of health and welfare.

Similar hair sprays were for sale here several years ago, were taken off the market and have now come back again.

A poison control centre

at Royal Jubilee Hospital may be called by either medical doctors or people afflicted by poisoning of any kind in order to learn about antidotes and to provide immediate medical care.

Malcolm Sutherland, owner of Sutherland Pharmacy, 2801 Douglas, said, "I understand sprays of this kind were taken off the market here because they were toxic. Now they are available again.

"Occasionally we get teenage girls asking for the spray, but we don't sell it."

The hair spray has a metallic sheen and is intended to color girls' hair in streaks or dots at the tip.

Build City Not Lures —Wallace

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Money that should be spent to make Victoria a more pleasant city in which to live shouldn't be spent on gimmicks to boost the tourist industry, Victoria Chamber of Commerce president John Wallace warned last night.

In an informal talk to members of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, he said visions of founding Victoria's economy on light industry or even the tourist trade should not be allowed to stand in the way of building "the one thing we've got—a very beautiful city."

He emphasized that he was speaking as an individual and not as a Chamber of Commerce representative.

Mr. Wallace decried the lack of forward-looking action on the part of Greater Victoria council governments in developing the areas as a place to live.

The only two major civic accomplishments of the past few years, he said, are the traffic circle at Douglas and Hillside and the Point Elliot Bridge—and the bridge was "forced on us" because of the poor condition of the previous one.

Urges Amalgamation

He called for amalgamation and said Vancouver's city government, with far greater problems to solve, manages to get its traffic moving faster than Victoria's.

He said development of Victoria as a tourist attraction should be concentrated on making the city permanently attractive and not on "risky financial ventures during a six-week period in the summer."

He called for money to be spent on "things our own people want" which will, incidentally, attract tourists. He suggested construction of several swimming pools and said Beacon Hill Park is in need of development. "They could get that old horse out of there."

Victoria, he said, has an unusual opportunity for cheap, permanent development of a beautiful city centre.

Literally acres in the Johnson Street Causeway area were covered by warehouses built in the days of sealing and whaling fleets and now standing mostly empty. "What city has a chance to rebuild itself after all its mistakes through the years?"

Revised Home Drive May Boost Appeal

Dinner Out Sunday Aids Wife, Drive

A city hotelman will urge Victorians to "eat out and keep your wife for a pet" Sunday in a unique bid to help boost the United Appeal.

Norman Loomer of the Dominion Hotel has offered the entire receipts of dinner-hour trade Sunday to the appeal.

A United Appeal official said yesterday that the staff of the hotel's cafe had donated its time and Mr. Loomer had offered all receipts taken in from 4 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Billed as "United Appeal Family Night," the offer includes free corsages for the women and cigars for the men, donated by local merchants.

A completely overhauled residential canvass should boost returns for this year's United Appeal drive, a Community Chest official said yesterday.

CANVASS CONTINUES

The residential campaign, one of the key canvasses that annually brings in from 20 to 25 per cent of the total amount sought for operating funds for United Appeal agencies, has collected to date $16,830 of its goal of $70,000.

The canvass will continue to the end of the month. Campaign officials are hoping the residential drive will actually clear up to $80,000, to make up for slumps in several other divisions.

COULD BE KEY

Campaign officials reported yesterday that all nine major divisions have so far collected $216,194 of the target of $360,000.

This year's drive could be the key to an enlarged United Appeal goal sought by both large corporate donors and the Community Chest.

A successful campaign would be a second victory in two consecutive years—a fact that may cause health, welfare and family service agencies outside the United Appeal to take a second look at the federated fund-raising plan.

HAZEL BROOKS ... it's hard, but means Christmas money.

Her Job Unusual

A slim, attractive 33-year-old Victoria housewife has what some people might consider an unusual job—she is working on the wrecking team that is tearing down the old Evans, Coleman & Evans brickyard on Douglas Street.

Hazel Brooks got the idea from her husband's aunt, she told the Colonist last night. (Her husband's aunt is Mrs. G. Brooks, 691 Hoy Lake.)

They both like working outside and they happen to be friends of the wreckers, H. & D. Taylor, 651 Alpha Street. The job will last about a month, by which time the historic landmark should be completely levelled.

"It's a little hard going," Mrs. Brooks said, "but we wanted to make some extra money for Christmas."

The job consists of cleaning the mortar off bricks, and stacking them on pallets. The two women work, on an average, seven hours a day.

This is not Mrs. Brooks' first experience as a wrecker. She worked on the demolition of the old greenhouses out Quadra Street some years ago. She also worked as a clerk, laundry worker and berry picker.

Mrs. Brooks lives at 2745 Quadra with her husband, Richard, 38, a truck driver, and their three children, Patricia, 11, Rocky, 8, and Richard, 4.

When Mrs. Brooks was asked if she was going to look for another wrecking job at the conclusion of this one, her husband responded with an emphatic "No."

Shelter Information Sought In Wake of Caribbean Crisis

Some Victoria and Esquimalt residents, apprehensive about the Cuban crisis, have been asking their civil defence headquarters for literature on nuclear warfare and fallout shelters.

MINOR PANIC

Few calls were received at the Saanich and Oak Bay CD headquarters, and none was received at the provincial level. It was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, a minor panic hit Vancouver, where worried parents made one call every 10 minutes to CD headquarters—many wondering whether they should evacuate to other areas.

Victoria target area co-ordinator William Mathers said "the public is taking it very calmly and soberly, nobody seems the slightest bit excited."

An official of the Victoria-Esquimalt and outlying districts CD headquarters said there were "quite a few calls," that there is "no doubt" it was a reaction to the Cuban crisis, and that one or two persons have been in to pick up booklets about fallout shelters.

Saanich CD officer David W. R. Smith said there was a deluge of interest in Saanich about

Cuba, but there was "no panic reaction."

Civil defence operation in the municipality was not stepped up, but "it would appear there is now some possibility we might have to use it quick," he said.

Mr. Smith said that a meeting of persons interested in CD warden service at the CD headquarters, 760 Vernon, at 8 p.m. Monday, was called before the Cuban situation deteriorated.

Plenty of Choice

Youngsters will have their choice of a wide variety of Halloween fire-crackers which go on sale today in the city. Merchant Sam Chan is one of many who will have everything from sparklers to sky rockets. Stores in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt will have to wait another week, but some children jumped the gun and were firing crackers last night.

Old Traditions Pass

University Assembly Moved

Victoria University laid the foundations of a new tradition yesterday by holding its first annual academic assembly in the Gordon Head campus gymnasium.

Principal Dr. W. H. Hickman, speaking from a platform filled with faculty and university council members wearing academic robes told assembled students and guests he regretted passing of the old system.

WINNERS LISTED

In former years scholarships and prizes had been awarded in person to the winning student, but growth of the university made this impossible.

Dr. Hickman referred to the printed program which listed 74 winners of the scholarships totalling more than $10,000 and 26 who won book prizes, watches and a slide rule.

"It is our hope that the donors and students listed in the program will accept this as an expression of our warm gratitude and sincere appreciation," the principal said.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Laval University economist Marcel Belanger. His topic: What is Happening in French Canada?

CHANGING

Mr. Belanger said French Canada itself is to a "fair degree" responsible for its own economic ills. In education it has been content to "carry the torch of culture" while neglecting more practical fields.

"Happily this state of things is changing rapidly," the speaker said. "Our universities are training an increasing number of engineers, business administrators, economists and sociologists."

One result is that on St. James Street a new elite of French Canadian administrators has already appeared.

English-speaking Canadians should examine their conscience and accept a share of responsibility in the crisis which is gripping French Canada, said Mr. Belanger.

MORE THAN TEXT

"It is our attitudes, our way of viewing things, which need to be changed much more than the text of the British North America Act," he said.

Mr. Belanger said other parts of Canada expect Quebec to conform to their image and when it does not, they lapse into a state of indifference.

NO ILL-WILL

"I know there is no ill-will on your part," the speaker added, "but there is unfortunately among some ignorance and indifference."

He said Quebec can be a beacon to protect Canada against a movement of annexation to the United States. As bilingualism and biculturalism continue to grow all Canadians can acquire an enriching participation in one of the great cultures of the western world.

Sun Now Shines Bright On Old Bastion Square

SQUARE DEAL: It's amazing the amount of interest in Bastion Square and the old courthouse which has developed just recently. Matter of fact, and just between us, the city's downtown parking committee which needs land in the area bounded by Langley, Fort, Wharf and Yates has under consideration a plan to level the courthouse and use the site, plus part of Bastion Square for its parking garage. It is one of several suggestions being considered.

KAM'S SONG: Perhaps the happiest man in Greater Victoria lately is Sam Lane who has been pushing hard for development of Bastion Square since 1956 with lots of approval but little real support. His original plan is basically similar to many of the latest proposals. An Englishman by birth, Sam is "tickled to pieces that at long last the native Victorians are taking note of the assets they have previously tended to disparage and deride."

BURNING HOUSE: There's a little rumor around town that a group of businessmen are interested in turning the old Duncan Building in Bastion Square area back into an hotel. It was famous in its early days as the famous House. It's only a little rumor though, at present.

which still has not indicated a desire to support the bureau in its promotion of tourism."

MURKIDY: Livewire Ald. Mike Murkidy, who is behind moves to have the John B. Rogers Co. come back next year for a $25,000 fee to produce another pageant, takes issue with yesterday's item about the problem of finding a free cast in the future. "We have been assured directed by publicity bureau by many groups that they would staff. 'The man who came in he was delighted to come forward another year and take part in the various productions,'" he says. "It should be pointed out that we had exactly the same group of actors a year ago who said it couldn't be done. We hope he's right if the city decides to subsidize the tourist industry to the tune of some $25,000."

Basil FitzGibbon

that Man in the Kitchen

Some people like it "hot" so they say. Throughout the years, debates have raged on the subject of curry. Is curry powder just an excuse, a means of camouflaging tainted meats? Is it a truly gourmet process—or is it a type of cooking which has evolved from climatic conditions? I think that the latter is closest to the truth.

A great variety of curry recipes are in print, but not too often included on North American menus. Such commodities as fish, eggs, vegetables, in addition to meats or chicken should all be included in a good collection of curry recipes. A curry powder is a combination of spices and herbs thoroughly dried and ground to a powder. The following are the principal ingredients: Allspice, bay leaves, cinnamon, caraway, chilli, celery seed, cloves, coriander, cumin, cardamom, curry leaves, dill, fennel, fenugreek, garlic, ginger, mace, dried mustard, nutmeg, pepper (black and white), paprika, poppy seeds, saffron, tumeric, mint, cubeb berries, sumach seed, juniper berries, zedary root, salt.

The curry powders available in the stores are usually a combination of at least fifteen of the above-mentioned herbs, seeds or spices. And the strength of the curry depends on the amount of chilli used. The color comes from the saffron, the tumeric, and, to a certain extent, paprika.

However, the real curry buff always blends his own curry powder, and enthusiasts can derive a great deal of pleasure by experimenting with a variety of mixtures. The purchase of a mortar and pestle is well worth while, and one big advantage to preparing your own curry powder is that it is sure to be fresh and considerably more aromatic than the store-bought varieties. For the newcomer to the mortar and pestle, I would suggest the inclusion of the following seeds, herbs and spices as a starter: Allspice, bay leaves, fenugreek, ginger, tumeric, saffron, dried mustard, chilli, cumin, coriander, pepper, nutmeg or cloves.

The normal method of building a curry consists of cooking chopped onion and garlic in butter or oil until transparent and tender but not browned. At this stage the curry powder is added, mixed well and cooked over a medium heat for at least one minute. This step is most important as the curry powder needs the direct heat to bring out the full flavor. The next step is to add the meat or other items and to brown them in the mixture of onions and curry powder before adding any liquid. It is interesting to note that a chicken curry, for example, does not require the addition of liquid as the curry of this type prepared in a heavy casserole when tightly covered will provide its own moisture. And the natural sauce which develops is extremely succulent.

Here are two recipes for curry that are well worth trying.

MAJOR GREY'S CURRY

Ingredients: 2½ lbs. diced lamb (shoulder or neck); 2 apples, peeled and chopped; 2 medium sized onions, chopped; 2 diced bananas; 1 tablespoon salt; 1 crushed bay leaf; 1 garlic clove, crushed; 1 tablespoon tomato paste; 3 tablespoons curry powder; ½ cup shredded coconut; ½ cup shredded almonds; 1 cup heavy cream; thyme.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Add onions, bananas, apples, and cook until slightly browned. Add the curry powder and mix well. Cook for 1 minute. Heat 3 tablespoons oil in a heavy skillet, add diced lamb and saute for 3 to 4 minutes. Remove the meat from the skillet and add it to the onions, apples and bananas. Season with salt, bay leaf, garlic, thyme, tomato paste, coconut, almonds, and mix well. Add 1 quart stock, bring to a boil and cook slowly over low heat for 1 hour or until tender. Add 1 cup heavy cream, correct the seasoning with salt, and remove it to a serving dish. If desired, raisins may be added. Serve with chutney.

LOBSTER AND SCALLOP CURRY

Ingredients: 1 lb. lobster meat, frozen or canned; 1 lb. scallops; ½ cup finely chopped onions or shallots; 1 cup chicken stock; 1 cup whole milk; 2 tablespoons butter; 3 tablespoons curry powder; 1 tablespoon flour; salt, lemon juice to taste, chopped parsley.

Melt the butter and add the onions. Saute until the onions are transparent and tender. Add the curry powder and cook for 1 minute. Add the scallops and sprinkle the flour into the pan. Cook for 23 minutes, add the chicken stock, stirring well, and then add the milk. Once the sauce has thickened, add the lobster, salt to taste and add a squeeze or two of lemon juice. Serve with plain boiled rice and garnish with chopped parsley.

Part of the fun of serving curry is the wonderful numbers of condiments which can be offered with it. Always use a good chutney, mango preferably, sweet or hot as desired, but consider one or more of the following: shredded coconut, chopped peanuts, finely chopped parsley, grated lemon rind, croutons, chopped green pepper, chopped red pepper, chopped hard boiled eggs. From India and available in a great many stores are papadum, chapati and Bombay duck. So, make up your mind what sort of curry you are going to cook, get out the mortar and pestle, blend your curry powder, and cook away. Select the condiments and serve away. Bon appetit... and don't forget the rice.

Spread Fastest

If You're Middle-Aged Start Walking Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're middle-aged, take a walk today. Ditto — tomorrow, the day after that and every day.

Unless you walk a little extra every day, you might not have the wind to blow out the candles on the cake the day you qualify for social security—if you live that long.

Doctors concerned about physical fitness figure middle-aged males and females are spreading the fastest, have the flabbiest muscles and are otherwise letting the fat creep up with the years.

In a survey, the physicians reported that the over-40 group is more in need of a physical fitness program than are young adults and the elderly. And they recommend walking as the number one way to battle the bulges, spare tires, bay windows, extra chins and what else there is in excess padding.

The survey, sponsored by "Patterns of Disease," a publication for doctors, included opinions of 3,753 physicians nationwide.

At least one-quarter of patients, although healthy, are not physically fit, according to almost four of five physicians surveyed. In the opinion of almost all the physicians, positive health benefits, both physical and mental, accompany physical fitness.

Membership Pins Given

At a recent meeting of All Saints WA, View Royal, life membership pins were bestowed on Mrs. A. Goodwin, retired secretary and on Mrs. H. Culling, treasurer.

Miss J. Leigh, first vice-president, Diocesan board, conducted the ceremony with Archbishop J. W. Forth who dedicated the pins. Mrs. G. T. Storey presented framed certificates and Mrs. A. Boyle and Mrs. J. J. Moran presented handmade corsages.

Most physical formal fitness programs are aimed at children. For the middle-aged, more in need of such programs in the physician's opinion, fitness becomes a do-it-yourself project.

After walking—the number one recommended exercise, the physicians urged the middle-aged to take up regular participation in a sport—say golf or swimming.

Only three per cent of the doctors suggested gymnastics and calisthenics. Setting up exercises, less strenuous than the gym work, were advised by 38 per cent.

There's more to physical fitness than just looking better in the mirror.

The doctors said positive health benefits accompanying a program of regular, moderate exercise include: Maintenance of muscle tone, improved cardio-vascular activity, improved respiratory function, improved mental health and increased longevity.

Even the not-fast middle-aged folks stand to gain by walking more, incidentally.

Research reports support the view that physical activity is a safeguard against obesity.

A report in the New England Journal of medicine some time ago noted that physical inactivity may be a factor in development of obesity, particularly among females.

Average physical activity, as measured by pedometers, of obese women was about 60 per cent less than that of non-obese women.

Obese males were almost 40 per cent less active than non-obese males when persons of similar age, socio-economic background and occupation were compared.

Wedding Trip To California

Garlands of Swiss lace embroidery accented the scoop neckline of the lovely white nylon sheer gown chosen by Laureen Anne Bennett for her recent marriage to Mr. Robert Gerald Harding. A fitted basque bodice topped her full hooped skirt that was also accented with delicate lace. Back folds of the skirt swept to a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a tiara of lace and pearls.

For something old, the bride wore a ring belonging to her paternal great grandmother. She carried a white prayer book and a single white orchid. Her jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence G. Bennett of Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hardin of North Surrey.

The double ring ceremony took place in St. Patrick's Church with Rev. Father M. J. McNamara officiating.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Norma Creed, the bridesmaid, Mrs. Phyllis Bogard and bridesmaid, Miss Sandra Cameron wore identically short dresses of orange-ice chromspun taffeta with overlays of orange-ice sparkle organza. Organza veiling skirted their matching pillbox hats. They carried bouquets of white roses.

Flower girl, Wendy Warren, wore a frock of white flocked nylon over orange-ice taffeta and carried a basket of white roses.

Uncle of the bride, J. P. Kesters, proposed the toast at a reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Mrs. K. Pullyblank played organ music. Leaving for a honeymoon in southern California, the bride donned a gold-toned sheath dress, fur jacket, matching fur pillbox hat and black accessories. Yellow sweetheart roses were in her corsage.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 12 years old. My parents have a fault that bothers me something terrible. They talk with food in their mouths at the dinner table. They also chew with their mouths wide open which is about the crudest thing a person can do.

I would like to know how to correct them. Dining at home is becoming a very unpleasant experience for me.—
WELL-MANNERED GIRL.

Dear Girl: How nice that you know how to keep your mouth closed at the table. Please take my advice and keep it closed away from the table, too.

Far more serious than talking with food in your mouth, is talking out of turn. Your parents perhaps did not have an opportunity to learn some of the fine points of etiquette. They must have some admirable qualities to have raised such an elegant young lady as you, so why don't you emphasize their good points and overlook the rest?

Dear Ann Landers: The 17-year-old son of our dear friends was arrested last week for stealing a car. We were shocked beyond words and so was everyone else in our social circle.

The family is prominent and extremely well-to-do. The boy had access to his mother's car as well as his dad's. All he had to do was ask. Why in the world would a boy do a thing like this? He is not stupid. His parents are heartbroken and nobody can figure out what got into the lad. Can you explain it?—QUESTION MARK.

Dear Question Mark: Some kids steal cars (and other things) because they don't have anything else to do. "Kicks," they call it.

A boy who would rather steal a car than ask to borrow one is undoubtedly looking for excitement.

When children of prominent families break the law, usually there is a punitive motive involved. They wish to humiliate and hurt their parents, and this is a sure way.

Museum Fits Square Plan

Province Not Saving Much—Now

A bid to find a new home for the B.C. Maritime Museum in the old courthouse complements the scheme to turn Bastion Square into an arts centre, city planner Roderick Clack said yesterday.

The planner said other properties fronting on the square, important in any scheme to preserve this section of the historic Lower Town area, could be converted for the proposed centre.

Supporters of the art centre scheme, first reported in the Colonist last Saturday, agree with his assessment, said Mr. Clack.

Jack Barracough, president of Victoria Symphony Society, was spokesman for the group that proposed conversion of the old courthouse into a music school, art school and craft centre. He said specialty shops could be established in the area to sell artists' work.

It was disclosed yesterday, however, that B.C. Maritime Museum is seeking an early meeting with Premier Bennett to discuss the possibility of acquiring the courthouse as its new home. The museum is now in cramped quarters on Esquimalt Road.

Government officials aren't saying much at this time, but Public Works Minister J. N. Chant yesterday gave an indication of what policy may be followed.

Mr. Chant said he had no comment on any proposal, but added: "One thing is certain—whenever we want something from the city we have to buy it. I suppose it's only fair that this should be regarded as a two-way street."

It appears likely that money will have to be found somewhere if the centre is to be established, whether it is in the old courthouse or in nearby buildings.

Estimated costs of the old board of trade building opposite the courthouse, which is occupied by a cartage firm that is in the process of moving, is approximately $50,000.

Two other buildings adjoining the courthouse could probably be had for approximately $55,000.

The courthouse itself is difficult to place a market value on, but a building of its size would probably cost between $250,000 to $300,000 to build today.

There has been no request, to date, for the city to put any money into the art centre scheme.

Mr. Clack said Bastion Square is one of the redevelopment projects in the city's overall downtown plan. But at present the city's role is simply one of guidance to the supporters of the art centre scheme.

Police Training To Be Unified

A uniform police training program will be established in the Victoria area, the four police commissions of Greater Victoria decided last night.

The meeting was held in camera in the office of city police chief John Blackstock. The press was not permitted to cover the meeting, on the grounds that "confidential letters" were to be discussed.

A brief statement issued after the meeting by city police commissioner Gordon H. Carter, chairman of the special meeting, stated that the four commissions and chiefs of police reached unanimous agreement.

"They agreed that a uniform police training program be established in the Victoria area and that a training co-ordinator be appointed. The unions of all four forces will be consulted immediately, the statement indicated."

Off to Vancouver

Victoria Nomads will meet in Vancouver Friday in a joint session with the Vancouver club at 8 p.m. in the Knights of Pithias Hall.

Cadets Give Generously To Blood Donor Clinic

Two hundred and sixty or almost 100 per cent of cadets from Royal Roads and HMCS Venture donated blood yesterday, according to Mrs. V. A. Thistle, secretary, blood donor panel, Red Cross Society.

Another clinic will be held today in the C.D. gymnasium at HMCS Naden between 9 a.m. and noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Three RCN destroyer-escorts left Esquimalt this week for six weeks' training in California and Hawaii.

HMCS Fraser, Saguenay and Skeena will touch in San Francisco before proceeding to Pearl Harbor for joint anti-submarine exercises with the U.S. Navy.

The Canadian ships will arrive back at Esquimalt Dec. 3.

Some store managers noticed some increase in sugar sales yesterday amid expectations of an increase in sugar prices and rumors sugar might be in short supply because of the Cuban situation.

Victoria supermarket operators said they did not think Cuba is a major supplier of the sugar sold here, but any change in the Cuban sugar supply would affect all sugar prices.

Assize court trial opened yesterday against Mrs. Molly D.

Appeal End Threatened

PENTICTON (CP)—Directors of Penticton's United Appeal will consider abandoning the campaign next year if the current drive fails to reach its objective of $25,000.

Directors said they were "very disappointed with the amount collected to date"—$8,450.

Hunt for Loot Wrecks House

BOSTON (UPI)—Federal officials Tuesday night collected a small sum of money, guns and other paraphernalia from a house wrecking search for the $1,500,000 loot of the U.S.'s largest robbery.

Postal inspectors and federal deputy marshals all but dismantled the $18,000 ranch-style home of Thomas R. Richards Wednesday in a hunt for clues to the Plymouth, Mass., mail truck robbery last Aug. 14.

Armed with jackhammers, digging tools and a power shovel, they broke up a concrete patio, tore down partitions, ripped up floorboards, chiseled open cabinets and woodwork, pried open walls and tore brick from the chimney.

When they stopped they had collected: $330 in $10 bills stuffed above a beam in the cellar of the six-room house; two bullet-proof vests, a 12-gauge shotgun similar to the type used in the holdup and a .45-calibre pistol, two metal footlockers and two black belts similar to those used in the robbery.

Richards, 37, disappeared from his job at the New England Power Co. in Fall River Tuesday.

Garden Notes

Challenge to Skill

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I don't suppose there is any branch of our beloved hobby which holds as much fascination for its devotees as that of rock gardening, especially when really choice alpine plants are grown. It is a real challenge to our skill to bring these subjects through the winter safely, for our climatic conditions are just about as far removed from their natural habitat as you could find anywhere in the world.

Here we have plants from the high, lone places, growing in nature in rock crevices or in limestone or granite rubble. They are accustomed to thin, clean air, brilliant sunshine, intense but very dry cold in winter, and a thick covering of light, fluffy snow. We take these mountain-dwellers and try to acclimatize them to a sea-level atmosphere, rain, soggy wet soil, city smog and fog.

The great enemy is the damp. Frost and low temperatures hold no dangers to alpine plants, and when we have our inevitable failures, it is nearly always due to persistent winter dampness, especially around the collar of the plant.

Good drainage is a must, of course, and we accomplish this by growing our alpine in a rock garden, raised well above the surrounding terrain, or possibly in crevices in a rock wall, where there is no possibility of the soil remaining soggy and stagnant around the roots. Even in such a position, though, there remains the problem of dampness around the plant stems at soil level.

One good way to combat this is to tuck a good handful of stone chips around each plant, mounding them up around the collar and pushing a few in under the lower leaves to prevent moisture settling in this vulnerable spot. Use granite chips for the plants that dislike lime and limestone chips for the real lime-lovers such as the campanulas, sempervivums, saxifragas, sedums, thymes and dwarf iris. The lime content of the chips will make for better flowering next year.

The collar is not the only vulnerable spot, though. As a general rule, any plant with fuzzy or woolly leaves has a violent dislike to dampness on the foliage, and such plants tend to die off in an excessively rainy winter.

Such plants include the lewisias, origanum, androsace, dictamnus and the cobweb-sempervivums.

The trick here is to rig up some kind of transparent umbrella over such woolly-leaved plants. It needn't be anything elaborate—a simple small sheet of glass held with spring clothes pegs six inches above the plant will do the trick. It isn't a good thing to cover alpine plants completely, as with cloches or inverted jam jars, for these subjects demand plenty of fresh air. What is wanted is a small glass roof, with no walls at all.

Speaking of dampness, pansies and violas have taken quite a beating from fungus infections this year, and as dampness favors the spread of such pansy sickness, the prospects are not too bright for these plants surviving the winter wet.

It would help a lot to scratch a little pulverized limestone around each plant, then dust with a good fungicide such as ferbam or phaltan. It is a good idea, too, to put down small piles of slug pellets or bait, as the slug is the principle carrier of pansy diseases.

Trained Worms Aid Science

By JOHN DAVY

It is a common belief among primitive tribes that the desirable qualities of some animal—courage, cunning—may be acquired by making a ritual meal of some part of it.

While scientists are likely to continue treating such beliefs with some scepticism, it has recently been decided that flatworms can acquire some of the qualities of other flatworms by eating them.

This has been demonstrated by a group of scientists at the University of Michigan.

Flatworms are extremely primitive creatures which are not disconcerted by being cut in half or even into several bits. But just regenerate new heads or tails, as required.

Despite their rudimentary brains, however, flatworms can be trained to make simple responses to light, and in an earlier series of experiments, the Michigan group found that when a "trained" flatworm was cut in half, the tail end regenerated a new head, and then turned out to have learned the lessons it had learned before bisection.

This suggested, rather surprisingly, that flatworms have some sort of memory which is not confined to the brain, but is somehow recorded throughout the body.

The Michigan workers considered that the record might consist of some kind of chemical change. To test this, they have recently been feeding trained flatworms to untrained ones (flatworms are keen cannibals).

By eating their learned kin, it transpired the untrained flatworms acquired the skills of the worms they had eaten.

These experiments have been repeated many times, and there seems to be no doubt that untrained flatworms fed on trained flatworms respond much more readily to light than when they are fed on untrained ones.

This seems to confirm the notion that, at least in flatworms, learning involves chemical changes, and that, in effect, flatworms have a chemical memory.

Some confirmation that a chemical memory may be more widespread than has been suspected is provided by recent experiments with rats at Göteborg. Scientists at the Institute of Neurobiology there trained some rats to run up a steel wire. This stimulated their sense of balance. Other rats were similarly stimulated by whirling in a centrifuge, but were not trained.

Brain cells from these rats were then analysed, and it was found that certain chemical changes had occurred in the cells from the trained rats which could not be detected in the untrained ones.

Significantly, the changes involved a crucial substance called RNA (ribonucleic acid), which is thought to be involved in carrying genetic information and instructions from the cell nucleus to the body of the cell. Thus it would be an appropriate substance to form the basis of a chemical memory.

The way in which memories are stored is still almost wholly mysterious. For many years it was assumed that the store must consist of new connections of some kind between nerve cells.

The possibility that the basis of memory is not new "wiring" in the brain, but subtle chemical changes of some kind, will open up many new avenues of research.—OFNS.

Pig 'Talk' Recorded

By HAROLD TILLEY

BRISBANE (CP) — Researchers at Australia's Queensland University and Gatton Agricultural College are eavesdropping on conversations between pigs. They've tape-recorded a full vocabulary of grunts and snorts and squeals and classified them to the point where they can figure out pretty well what the talk is all about.

Dr. Glen McBride, animal genetics professor who heads the study, said pigs are an ideal animal for language study because they are "contact" animals—those who prefer to be in actual bodily contact with each other. They have relatively poor eyesight but keen senses of hearing and smell.

For mutual identification, pigs use sight and sound. For most other communication they use only sound.

"Words" readily identifiable and on record include signals for "where are you?", "I'm here!", "who are you?", "look out!", "help me."

Other sounds get across messages on food and feeding, obedience, belligerence and humility.

All the sounds are concerned with emotions.

The researchers found that the sound most used by pigs is one expressing satisfaction with their "togetherness."

De Wilde Changes Medium

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Brandon De Wilde, who grew to be 20 when I wasn't looking, has received his draft papers and reports for military service the end of this month.

Mickey Hargitay asked his current girl, Jane Wald, to appear in one of his TV show segments but Jane, who does not mix pleasure with business, wanted more than Mickey cared to pay.

Rock Hudson will play the son and his father in It Seems There Were These Two Irishmen. But first he makes Man's Favorite Sport for Howard Hawks, and two of his favorite sports will be Ursula Andress and Maria Perschy.

Monique Van Vooren sees husband Gerard W. Purrell much more since they separated... actress Jill Ireland and husband David McCallum will adopt a baby. They have a four-year-old son and want to give him a playmate.

Terry Moore, who used to make those early rather terrible pictures with Robert Wagner, is up for the lead in All the Beautiful Girls.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

The main trouble with the U.S. is that Americans are just plain too rich. This is the basic idea of a brief new book America and the World Revolution by the famous English historian Arnold Toynbee (Oxford). I think he's dead right.

People in other countries don't like Americans because of their soldiers, diplomats and businessmen—and their wives and children—drive around in expensive cars, eat rich U.S.-imported foods, and insist on the world's highest standards of plumbing for their own comfort. They shuttle between their gleaming, glittering American schools and their gleaming, glittering, air-conditioned American-style houses and hotels. In the midst of Austria, Afghanistan, Ecuador or Ghana they live on their own little islands, astronomically far removed from the daily life that goes on around them.

That's what Toynbee tells us, politely but sternly, and that's what every American knows who has ever been abroad. The outcome of the cold war depends largely on the goodwill of the underdeveloped nations and the U.S. can't gain that goodwill if it's blatantly incapable of stomach-aching ordinary Burmese food or using an ordinary Tunisian bathroom.

How can it get out of this fix?

How can it—as Toynbee puts it—"rejoin our own revolution?" Unfortunately his ideas on the problem are vague and dreamily impossible. He thinks the U.S. should build up the Peace Corps and suggest—seriously—that the president, by executive order, should abolish all P-Xs abroad and all of the advertising business at home (on the theory that if things weren't advertised, Americans would gradually lose their luxurious tastes).

Send Large Chunk

Later on he comes up with the notion that the U.S. should send a large chunk of its national wealth to the poor nations abroad.

You don't have to be much of a cynic to take little stock in these suggestions. Things won't happen that way and "the handicap of affluence," as Toynbee calls it, will be with the U.S. for quite some time.

Meanwhile, however, there's the inescapable historical law that whatever goes up must eventually come down. Sooner or later the gap between the American standard of living and that of the rest of the world will narrow down and the hate and mistrust earned by riches will diminish. Even now, people in Europe, Japan and Australia are beginning to have cars, supermarkets, TV sets and washing machines and feel less and less like our poor relations. Then America can start to become real friends with the world.

Recordings show this basic grunt of contentment is continuous as they move about the pen in bodily contact.

If they become separated the grunt becomes slightly changed to a "location" call. This is often used by baby pigs when they stray from the mother. The sow gives a responding location call and brings the straying piglet—and all others in the litter—to her nose.

The sow's feeding call is different, for when she signals "come and get it," all the piglets travel at top speed to action stations on the udder—not to her nose.

Another distinctive grunt is the "threat," used when strangers meet and there is much mutual sniffing.

It is also given when an observer approaches a litter or when pigs, separated by a fence, run up and down each side snorting at each other. There is no mistaking the meaning of the snorts and their accompanying motions, says McBride.

The "do as you're told" or discipline call is a modification of the threat grunt.

One of its most important uses is when the sow warns new-born piglets to "stand off" so they won't be crushed while she rises.

All squeal sounds are unhappy ones, McBride says. There are no squeals of delight.

The distress squeals are given at all levels and at all intensities from mild protest to the shrill piercing cry of a pig being roughly handled.

A most distinctive squeal is that of submission, emitted by the vanquished in a fight. It is the "towel-in-the-ring" signal and as soon as it is given one grunt of satisfaction from the victor ends the battle.

Africans Ask Canadian Aid

OTTAWA (UPI)—Officials of three African countries Wednesday sought economic and technical assistance from Canada to help set up a new nine-nation African development bank.

The officials—Romeo Hor-ton, president of the Bank of Liberia, Felix Mathos, manager of the Development Bank of Guinea, and Y. W. Mangash, vice-governor of Ethiopia's

State Bank—met with External Affairs Minister Howard Green and department officials.

They lunched with Bank of Canada Governor Louis Ras-minsky and will meet with him today before flying to New York and Washington.

The trio—part of a committee of nine set up by the member nations—said they were seeking low-interest loans, grants for social development and some technical assistance.

Participating nations are Nigeria, the Sudan, Tanganyika, Mali, the Cameroons, Tunisia, Ethiopia, Liberia and Guinea.

Injunction Bans Picketing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice Arthur Lord in Supreme Court Wednesday issued an injunction banning picketing of Allied Engineering of B.C. Limited by members of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Industrial Union Local No. 1.

The firm claims damages for breach of the Labor Relations Act the Trade Unions Act and for unlawful picketing.

Wallace T. Husband, president of the firm, said the union went on strike at the plant Oct. 17 and pickets carried signs which misled the public.

A spontaneous standing ovation greeted New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas yesterday when he entered the B.C. Federation of Labor convention at Empress Hotel, fresh from a landslide victory in Monday night's Burnaby-Coquitlam federal byelection. Behind him is B.C. NDP-CCF Leader Robert Strachan. — (Bud Kinsman)

Treaty Probe Goal

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas, greeted by a standing ovation by B.C. trade unionists, said yesterday he would press for a Commons committee probe of all aspects

Resolution Denounces Timber Firm Practices

An emergency resolution "denouncing" MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. will go before more than 300 delegates to the B.C. Federation of Labor convention today.

The resolution, which also asks for a Commons investigation into "monopolistic practices" of the company, brands MacMillan's bid to prosecute Local 185, its president and 48 boom men employed at the Port Alberni Somass Division mill, as "intimidation."

The resolution accuses the company of "provocative, anti-labor actions" by "corporation officials in dealing with a protest against a violation of contract terms."

The latter has been borne out by the LRB's permission given the union to launch a counter-prosecution, the resolution says.

It accuses the company of adopting a policy of "tyrannical job relations designed to cripple trade unionism under protection of Bill 43 amendments."

INFORM PUBLIC
It calls on the executive council of the B.C. Federation of Labor to "investigate the facts in the case and take suitable action to inform the public with regard to the corporation's anti-labor policy."

TO SEEK INQUIRY
It also asks NDP members in the B.C. Legislature and the House of Commons to demand an investigation "into the monopolistic practices of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd., and the control exercised by this industrial complex over timber lands and forest production and sales on the grounds that the corporation has shown complete irresponsibility towards public welfare."

Federation Stand Held 'Ill-Founded'

A MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company Ltd. official said last night the resolution about the company to be considered today at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention in Victoria is "typically ill-founded."

"The federation is referring to a single incident at Somass Division of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., and is building a series of poorly-grounded charges designed to confuse a simple issue," he said.

"The company is only concerned with establishing the fact that a signed agreement carries full responsibility for

BANANAS ARE IMPORTED for the same reasons that LEMON HART RUMS ARE IMPORTED

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rum. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in The Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

'Market' Attitude Will Be Tough As Talks Resume

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Britain may meet the toughest European attitude yet when it resumes negotiations today on its bid for common market membership, informed sources say.

Design Chief

Lt. Cmdr. Roger Dickinson of Victoria has been promoted to commander and appointed director of aircraft design and production at naval headquarters in Ottawa.

The European six may give a flat "no" to two British requests affecting protections for her Commonwealth partners, these informants said.

The tougher attitude appeared as the talks on British entry passed the generalities stage and got down to specific commodities.

Opposition to Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath is likely to come on what is called the "nil tariff" list. This is a list of 17 products which Britain would like to see imported into the common market tariff free after she joins.

The main products are zinc, lead, aluminum and newsprint which comes from the Commonwealth and enjoy preference tariff rates into Britain.

Measle Virus Discovered
BOSTON (AP)—Two American medical research teams have independently discovered the long-sought German measles virus. The disease can cause deafness, blindness and heart disease in developing infants.

The discoveries pave the way for a vaccine to control the disease. They also make possible for the first time—accurate diagnosis of German measles infection.

Engineers' Concert Delights Audience

By BERT BINNY

The Royal Canadian Engineers' concert band and its excellent 16-voice male choir from Camp Chilliwack came to Victoria last night with a whole program of delightful music.

The large audience at the Royal Theatre included Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes.

STIRRING MARCHES

Conducted by Lieutenant Leonard Camplin, the band played stirring marches, excerpts from opera and musical comedy and featured a number of highly-accomplished instrumental soloists. The xylophone duet of Band Staff-Sergeant T. J. Harden and Band Sergeant A. C. Shaw received an encore of their excellent The Two Dons.

In addition, the trumpet trio of Band Staff Sergeant F. Langton and Staff Sergeants

C. C. Reardon and S. F. Dunning, clarinetist Band Sergeant J. H. Moonen and saxophone soloist Band Sergeant C. H. Young were all received enthusiastically.

OWN COMPOSITIONS

Guest conductor was Capt. J. M. Gayfer, director of HMCS Naden school of music, who led the band through two of his own compositions: a march, Canada Overseas, and a descriptive piece, Canadian Landscape.

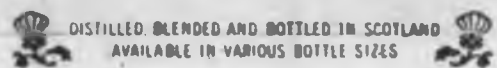

The playing of Canadian Landscape actually constituted a premiere. The guest vocalist was soprano Udeane Wade of Chilliwack.

The concert was introduced by R. J. Bower, editor-in-chief of the Colonist, and Walter Cownden was master of ceremonies. The committee of the Armed Services Centre sponsored the program, and all proceeds will go to the centre.

Indians Retreat

Peace Calls Fail to Halt Chinese Reds

From Reuters and UPI Dispatches

NEW DELHI—Communist Chinese troops pressed their multi-pronged drive into India Wednesday despite Chinese proposals for a cease-fire and high-level peace talks between Peking and New Delhi.

Telstar Station Rocked

ANDOVER, Me. (AP)—Six persons were injured, two seriously, late Wednesday when a boiler exploded in the control building of the Telstar earth station, an official said.

In New York, an American Telephone Company spokesman said damage to the building was not structural and will have no effect on control or operation of Telstar.

A hospital source said Dryer and Belanger suffered serious burns about the face. The other four were treated for superficial burns of the face and hands.

A spokesman said damage from the explosion was confined to the boiler room.

The spokesman said the six men were doing routine maintenance work in the boiler room when the explosion occurred.

Judge Critical Of Labor Chief

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris Wednesday accused AFL-CIO President George Meany of failing to live up to his responsibilities as head of the central labor body of the United States.

(See earlier story, Page 3) "We wouldn't be in the present mess . . . if Mr. Meany had lived up to his responsibilities," said the Vancouver jurist who is investigating labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

The judge said he could not understand why Mr. Meany, as AFL-CIO head of the American Federa-

First Assumption: Can't Stand Alone

The second assumption has to be that no question of "sovereignty" in the military sense is involved, for sovereignty in this area does not now and cannot exist.

No Lavish Spending
The third assumption is that, as an underpopulated and, relative to resources, economically undeveloped country, Canada cannot spend on defence as lavishly as, say, the United States.

These assumptions lead logically to abandonment of all thought of competing with the

Mr. K Eyes Summit

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, calling for a summit meeting, urged the United States Wednesday, in stay in hand in the Cuban crisis to relieve the threat of thermonuclear war. He said the Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions but will act if the United States carries out "piratical actions."

"As long as rocket nuclear weapons are not put into play it is still possible to avert war," he said.

VITAL QUESTION
The question of war and peace is so vital that we should consider useful a top-level meeting in order to discuss all problems which have arisen, to do everything possible to remove the danger of unleashing a thermonuclear war."

KENNEDY REJECTS PLEA FROM UN

Red Ships Back Off From Clash

WASHINGTON (CP)—Some Soviet bloc ships steaming toward Cuba "appear to have altered course," thus backing away from a clash with a massive U.S. fleet blockading Cuba, the defence department said Wednesday.

A spokesman said "other vessels are proceeding toward Cuba." He said no interception of a vessel by the U.S. blockade fleet "has yet been necessary." But the Caribbean vigilance still was being maintained.

STILL MYSTERY
The terse comments did not serve to dispel the mystery shrouding the whereabouts and intentions of a reported 25 Soviet vessels believed bound for Cuba with missiles and bombers that the U.S. has proclaimed it will turn back—with force, if necessary.

But the report that some of the vessels appeared to have altered course, combined with a statement by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that he would not be provoked into rash action, helped provide an air of slightly easing tension in the Cuban crisis.

INTENTIONS UNKNOWN
Still missing was any firm evidence of whether the Soviet Union might now or later head some or all of the ships into a full test of the U.S. quarantine on offensive arms shipments into Premier Fidel Castro's encircled island ordered by President Kennedy in a TV-radio address Monday night.

There was no official reaction but there was some doubt whether Kennedy would be willing to meet Khrushchev at the summit until there is further evidence Russia intends to halt its missile build-up in Cuba.

HOWARD GREEN
stand by friends

Canada Backing 'Our Friend, U.S.'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said Wednesday night Canada is backing the United States "all the way" in the Cuban crisis but he declined under persistent questioning to state categorically that it endorses the U.S. arms blockade.

"We have always stood by our friends and the Americans are our friends, so we are standing by them," Mr. Green told a CBC radio-television press conference.

RESERVATIONS
However, his response to repeated questions on whether Canada agrees with the U.S. "quarantine" of Cuba indicated that the government has strong reservations about it.

"The action has been taken," Mr. Green said in reply to one question. "The important thing is what's done from now on."

New Photos 'More Revealing'

WASHINGTON (AP)—

The defence department said Wednesday night it has new aerial reconnaissance photographs of Soviet ballistic missile bases in Cuba "even more revealing" than those which led President Kennedy to order the quarantine action.

This new reported evidence of a nuclear threat aimed at the Americas increased speculation that the U.S. eventually may decide to take direct action aimed at eliminating the bases, in addition to stopping by blockade the arrival of any more offensive weapons in Cuba.

Pedestrian Killed

A Victoria woman died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 11 p.m. last night as the result of an accident at the corner of Gladstone and Fernwood.

Mrs. M. J. Fleming, 70, of 1131 Fernwood, was crossing Fernwood from the southeast to the southwest corner at Gladstone about 7:30 p.m. when she was in collision with a car driven by John G. King, 2315 Fernwood, police said.

Mrs. Fleming was within the marked crosswalk when the accident occurred, police said.

Mock Battle

BERLIN (UPI)—Five thousand combat-clad American troops waged mock battle in West Berlin Wednesday amid fresh Soviet warnings that all Allied troops must clear out of the city before any German settlement is reached.

This would involve the sending to Cuba of a UN observer corps to assure that the missile bases were dismantled or, at the very least, that work now in progress on them was

Crisis May Strengthen UN

Douglas Hopes Smaller Nations May Gain Controlling Power

By ED COSGROVE

A stronger United Nations where uncommitted nations would dictate terms of disarmament to the leading powers may emerge from the present Cuban crisis, New Democratic Party national leader T. C. Douglas said yesterday.

to the B.C. Federation of Labor convention at the Empress Hotel, Mr. Douglas said that if the world escaped a shooting war, a United Nations police force could well become a reality. This, he said, was the supreme test of the U.N.

He said the present crisis underlined the need for the establishment of a rule of law . . . where no nation no matter how powerful, has the right to unilateral action." Mr. Douglas said the Cuban crisis demonstrated the need to prevent the spread of nuclear armaments.

"This is the time for the United Nations to . . . demonstrate that it can cope with a major crisis," said Mr. Douglas. He added that the Cuban situation may well see so far uncommitted nations line up in a bloc that might dictate disarmament terms to the big powers.

Successful intercession in the present crisis "will give these non-committed nations a sense of purpose and authority . . . it will be the first time they have succeeded in stopping the big powers," said Mr. Douglas.

In his speech Mr. Douglas blamed U.S. policy towards Cuba for creation of the present crisis.

He said he lacked the information to judge the merit of American claims, but felt the blockade should be undertaken by neutral countries. "The story of Castro is one of a people's revolution over-

Once Removed

Toxic Hair Spray on Sale Here

An allegedly poisonous hair spray recently caused the near death of a seven-year-old Pasadena, Calif. boy, and a similar spray is on sale in Victoria department stores.

The container bears the following warning: "Spray only in well-ventilated area. Avoid inhalation of spray mist."

... Keep container out of reach of children.

So far, no toxic effects of this or other hair sprays have been reported to Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health.

These facts emerged after a Colonist investigation:

• All cosmetics on sale in Canada have to be approved by the food and drugs directorate of the national department of health and welfare;

• Similar hair sprays were for sale here several years ago, were taken off the market and have now come back again;

• A poison control centre

at Royal Jubilee Hospital may be called by either medical doctors or people afflicted by poisoning of any kind in order to learn about antidotes and to provide immediate medical care.

Malcolm Sutherland, owner of Sutherland Pharmacy, 2801 Douglas, said, "I understand sprays of this kind were taken off the market here because they were toxic. Now they are available again.

"Occasionally we get teenage girls asking for the spray, but we don't sell it."

The hair spray has a metallic sheen and is intended to color girls' hair in streaks or dots at the tip.

Build City Not Lures —Wallace

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Money that should be spent to make Victoria a more pleasant city in which to live shouldn't be spent on gimmicks to boost the tourist industry, Victoria Chamber of Commerce president John Wallace warned last night.

In an informal talk to members of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, he said visions of founding Victoria's economy on light industry or even the tourist trade should not be allowed to stand in the way of building "the one thing we've got—a very beautiful city."

He emphasized that he was speaking as an individual and not as a Chamber of Commerce representative.

Mr. Wallace decried the lack of forward-looking action on the part of Greater Victoria civic governments in developing the areas as a place to live.

The only two major civic accomplishments of the past few years, he said, are the traffic circle at Douglas and Hillside and the Point Ellice Bridge—and the bridge was "forced on us" because of the poor condition of the previous one.

Urges Amalgamation

He called for amalgamation and said Vancouver's city government, with far greater problems to solve, manages to get its traffic moving faster than Victoria's.

He said development of Victoria as a tourist attraction should be concentrated on making the city permanently attractive and not on "risky financial ventures during a six-week period in the summer."

He called for money to be spent on "things our own people want" which will, incidentally, attract tourists. He suggested construction of several swimming pools and said Beacon Hill Park is in need of development. "They could get that old horse out of there."

Victoria, he said, has an unusual opportunity for cheap, permanent development of a beautiful city centre.

Literally acres in the Johnson Street-Causeway area were covered by warehouses built in the days of sealing and whaling fleets and now standing mostly empty. "What city has a chance to rebuild itself after all its mistakes through the years?"

Money First

He was dubious about proposals to develop the Bastion Square former courthouse as an art centre to contain such things as museums and an art gallery.

"None of these things pay their way. We should decide where the money is coming from first. The university is the natural place to develop culture." And promotion of Victoria College—"it's still a college"—and unification of its campus should be hastened.

It's been a battle to keep what secondary industry Victoria has, he said, and experts say there isn't going to be any move of much secondary industry to Victoria.

With development of efficient ferry services, he said, even service industries such as wholesaling and dry cleaning for Victoria residents will tend to move to the mainland and serve Victoria from there.

Revised Home Drive May Boost Appeal

Dinner Out Sunday Aids Wife, Drive

A city hotelman will urge Victorians to "eat out and keep your wife for a pet" Sunday in a unique bid to help boost the United Appeal.

Norman Loomer of the Dominion Hotel has offered the entire receipts of dinner-hour trade Sunday to the appeal.

A United Appeal official said

yesterday that the staff of the hotel's cafe had donated its time and Mr. Loomer had offered all receipts taken in from 4 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Billed as "United Appeal Family Night," the offer includes free corsages for the women and cigars for the men, donated by local merchants.

A completely overhauled residential canvass should boost returns for this year's United Appeal drive, a Community Chest official said yesterday.

CANVASS CONTINUES

The residential campaign, one of the key canvasses that annually brings in from 20 to 25 per cent of the total amount sought for operating funds for United Appeal agencies, has collected to date $16,630 of its goal of $70,000.

The canvass will continue to the end of the month. Campaign officials are hoping the residential drive will actually clear up to $80,000, to make up for slumps in several other divisions.

COULD BE KEY

Campaign officials reported yesterday that all nine major divisions have so far collected $216,194 of the target of $360,000.

This year's drive could be the key to an enlarged United Appeal—a goal sought by both large corporate donors and the Community Chest.

A successful campaign would be a second victory in two consecutive years—a fact that may cause health, welfare and family service agencies outside the United Appeal to take a second look at the federated fund-raising plan.

Jury Convicts Sailor On Reduced Charge

AB Frederick William Empey, 23, HMCS Naden, was found guilty of dangerous driving yesterday by an assize court jury.

Empey had been charged with criminal negligence causing the death May 21 of Mrs.

Gladys Dobbin, 48, in a two-car crash on the Malahat.

However, the jury—after deliberating for nearly three hours—passed the guilty verdict on the lesser charge.

Empey was remanded in custody for sentence at 10:30 a.m. Friday by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe.

Plenty of Choice

Youngsters will have their choice of a wide variety of Halloween firecrackers which go on sale today in the city. Merchant Sam Chan is one of many who will have everything from sparklers to sky rockets. Stores in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt will have to wait another week, but some children jumped the gun and were firing crackers last night.

Old Traditions Pass University Assembly Moved

Victoria University laid the foundations of a new tradition yesterday by holding its first annual academic assembly in the Gordon Head campus gymnasium.

Principal Dr. W. H. Hickman, speaking from a platform filled with faculty and university council members wearing academic robes, told assembled students and guests he regretted passing of the old system.

WINNERS LISTED

In former years scholarships and prizes had been awarded in person to the winning students, but growth of the university made this impossible.

Dr. Hickman referred to the printed program which listed 78 winners of the scholarships totalling more than $10,000 and 26 who won book prizes, watches and a slide rule.

"It is our hope that the donors and students listed in the program will accept this as an expression of our warm gratitude and sincere appreciation," the principal said.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Laval University economist Marcel Belanger. His topic: What is Happening in French Canada?

CHANGING

Mr. Belanger said French Canada itself is to a "fair degree" responsible for its own economic ills. In education it has been content to "carry the torch of culture" while neglecting more practical fields.

"Happily this state of things is changing rapidly," the speaker said. "Our universities are training an increasing number of engineers, business administrators, economists and sociologists."

One result is that on St. James Street a new elite of French-Canadian administrators has already appeared.

English-speaking Canadians should examine their conscience and accept a share of responsibility in the crisis which is gripping French Canada, said Mr. Belanger.

MORE THAN TEXT

"It is our attitudes, our way of viewing things, which need to be changed much more than the text of the British North America Act," he said.

Mr. Belanger said other parts of Canada expect Quebec to conform to their image and when it does not, they lapse into a state of indifference.

NO ILL-WILL

He said Quebec can be a bastion to protect Canada against a movement of annexation to the United States. As bilingualism and bi-culturalism continue to grow all Canadians can acquire an enriching participation in one of the great cultures of the western world.

HAZEL BROOKS ... it's hard, but means Christmas money.

Her Job Unusual

A slim, attractive 33-year-old Victoria housewife has what some people might consider an unusual job—she is working on the wrecking team that is tearing down the old Evans, Coleman & Evans brickyard on Douglas Street.

Hazel Brooks got the idea from her husband's aunt, she told the Colonist last night. (Her husband's aunt is Mrs. G. Brooks, 691 Hoy Lake.)

They both like working outside and they happen to be friends of the wreckers, H. & D. Taylor, 631 Alpha Street. The jobs will last about a month, by which time the historic landmark should be completely leveled.

Housewife Wrecking Brickyard

"It's a little hard going," Mrs. Brooks said, "but we wanted to make some extra money for Christmas."

The job consists of cleaning the mortar off bricks, and two women work, on an average, seven hours a day.

This is not Mrs. Brooks' first experience as a wrecker. She worked on the demolition of the old greenhouses on Quadra Street some years ago. She also worked as a clerk, laundry worker and berry picker.

Mrs. Brooks lives at 2745 Quadra with her husband, Richard, 38, a truck driver, and their three children, Patricia, 11, Rocky, 8, and Richard, 4.

When Mrs. Brooks was asked if she was going to look for another wrecking job at the conclusion of this one, her husband responded with an emphatic "No."

Shelter Information Sought In Wake of Caribbean Crisis

Some Victoria and Esquimalt residents, apprehensive about the Cuban crisis, have been asking their civil defence headquarters for literature on nuclear warfare and fallout shelters.

MINOR PANIC

Few calls were received at the Saanich and Oak Bay CD headquarters, and none was received at the provincial level, it was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, a minor panic hit Vancouver, where worried parents made one call every 10 minutes to CD headquarters—many wondering whether they should evacuate to other areas.

Victoria target area co-ordinator William Mathers said "the public is taking it very calmly and soberly, nobody seems the slightest bit excited."

An official of the Victoria-Esquimalt and outlying districts CD headquarters said there were "quite a few calls," that there is "no doubt" it was a reaction to the Cuban crisis, and that one or two persons have been in to pick up booklets about fallout shelters.

Saanich CD officer David W. R. Smith said there was a lot of interest in Saanich about

Cuba, but there was "no panic reaction."

Civil defence operation in the municipality was not stepped up, but "it would appear there is now some possibility we might have to use it quick," he said.

Mr. Smith said that a meeting of persons interested in CD wardens service at the CD headquarters, 760 Vernon, at 8 p.m. Monday, was called before the Cuban situation deteriorated.

Sun Now Shines Bright On Old Bastion Square

STAFF NOTEBOOK By Ted Shackelford

SQUARE DEAL: It's amazing the amount of interest in Bastion Square and the old courthouse which has developed just recently. Matter of fact, and just between us, the city's downtown parking committee which needs land in the area bounded by Langley, Fort, Wharf and Yates has under consideration a plan to level the courthouse and use the site, plus part of Bastion Square for its parking garage. It is one of several suggestions being considered.

RAM'S BONG: Perhaps the happiest man in Greater Victoria lately is Sam Lane who has been pushing hard for development of Bastion Square since 1956 with lots of approval but little real support. His original plan is basically similar to many of the latest proposals. An Englishman by birth, Sam is "tickled to pieces that at long last the native Victorians are taking note of the assets they have previously tended to disparage and deride."

BURNES HOUSE: There's a little rumor around town that a group of businessmen are interested in turning the old Duncan Building in Bastion Square area back into an hotel. It was famous in its early days as the Burnes House. It's only a little rumor though, at present.

"We have been assured by many groups that they would be delighted to come forward in another year and take part in the various productions," he says. "It should be pointed out that we had exactly the same dubbing Thomases a year ago when he said it couldn't be done." We hope he's right if the city decides to subsidize the tourist industry to the tune of some $45,000.

PORT ALBERNI — Swimming pool was open for only 65 days this summer, but the total attendance figure exceeded 17,000. Ald. Earle Bowen, chairman of Port Alberni recreation commission, reported to council.

ALBERNI — "It is high time" a recreation commission is formed in Alberni, council members stated at a recent meeting.

A letter from Richard Durante asked council to take an interest in the Vancouver Island recreation conference being held in A. W. Neill Junior Secondary School this week.

Mayor Fred Bishop said he would attend.

PORT ALBERNI — A realistic approach to the promotion of wood products was advocated by Ray Zoost, MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. of production, Port Alberni sawmills, when he was guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Zoost said synthetic and other materials have offered competition to wood and the industry had allowed some of its markets to be lost. "We now realize we have to sell our products," he said.

ALBERNI — Bill Manion was installed as master councillor of Kilts Chapter deMolay in ceremonies in St. Andrew's Church hall, Wayne Gorrie and Allan Nelson are senior and junior councillors.

Past master councillor, Hart Kendrick of Kilts Chapter, headed the installation team which included members from Courtenay and Nanaimo chapters. Andrea Stated became the Kilts Chapter Sweetheart, succeeding Sharon Sloan.

ALBERNI — Council is protesting the fly ash problem, claiming conditions have been extremely bad during the past week and recommended "strong" letters be sent to MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. and Tahsis Co. Ltd.

ALBERNI — Mayor Fred Bishop was authorized by council to initiate a joint petition for construction of the proposed Alberni-Cumberland road.

Mayor Bishop previously recommended groups from both Alberni and Comox areas should combine their efforts to link the two valleys.

ALBERNI — Regional controller W. H. Irvine of the civil aviation branch, department of transport, will attend a meeting Friday at the Somass Legion Hall when plans for establishment of modern airport facilities are discussed.

J. W. G. Jones, president of Alberni Valley Flying Club, whose organization is behind the move to have Somass farm airstrip improved to accommodate major air traffic, said he had received further assurance from B.C. aviation council of support for the project.

CAMPBELL RIVER — An accident in thick fog at Oyster River bridge caused damage to the guard rail when an Island Freight Co. truck, driven by Ron Beebe, slithered down the highway embankment after its brakes failed. The truck also dislodged two telephone poles.

NANAIMO — Fifteen members of the Nanaimo Devil Fish Diving Club met Sunday at Yellow Point for the first winter exercise and caught 38 fish.

Indians Retreat

Peace Calls Fail to Halt Chinese Reds

From Reuters and UPI Dispatches

NEW DELHI—Communist Chinese troops pressed their multi-pronged drive into India Wednesday despite Chinese proposals for a cease-fire and high-level peace talks between Peking and New Delhi.

Telstar Station Rocked

ANDOVER, Me. (AP)—Six persons were injured, two seriously, late Wednesday when a boiler exploded in the control building of the Telstar earth station, an official said.

In New York, an American Telephone Company spokesman said damage to the building was not structural and will have no effect on control or operation of Telstar.

A hospital source said the injured men suffered serious burns about the face. The other four were treated for superficial burns of the face and hands.

A spokesman said damage from the explosion was confined to the boiler room.

The spokesman said the six men were doing routine maintenance work in the boiler room when the explosion occurred.

Judge Critical Of Labor Chief

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris Wednesday accused AFL-CIO President George Meany of failing to live up to his responsibilities as head of the central labor body of the United States.

"We wouldn't be in the present mess . . . if Mr. Meany had lived up to his responsibilities," said the Vancouver jurist who is investigating labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

The judge said he could not understand why Mr. Meany, as head of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, had not dealt personally with the union dispute that has involved both Canadian and American unions in a bitter struggle for power on the waterfront.

With his public inquiry in its fifth session, Mr. Justice Norris asked why Mr. Meany left the handling of the dispute to Paul Hall, American chief of the Seafarers' International Union of North America as well as president of the powerful Maritime Trades Department of the AFL-CIO. There was no answer in his question.

New Look in Defence

First Assumption: Can't Stand Alone

By HARRY HALLIWELL
Fourth of a Series

In any reasoned approach to a new defence policy for Canada, the first assumption has to be that we cannot defend ourselves by ourselves.

The second assumption has to be that no question of "sovereignty" in the military sense, is involved, for sovereignty in this area does not now and cannot exist.

No Lavish Spending
The third assumption is that, as an underpopulated and, relative to resources, economically underdeveloped country, Canada cannot spend on defence as lavishly as, say, the United States.

These assumptions lead logically to abandonment of all thought of competing with the

Mr. K Eyes Summit

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, calling for a summit meeting, urged the United States Wednesday to stay its hand in the Cuban crisis to relieve the threat of thermonuclear war. He said the Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions but will act if the United States carries out "pirate actions."

"As long as rocket nuclear weapons are not put into play it is still possible to avert war," he said.

VITAL QUESTION
"The question of war and peace is so vital that we should consider useful a top-level meeting in order to discuss all problems which have arisen, to do everything possible to remove the danger of unleashing a thermonuclear war."

TELIA RUSSELL
Khrushchev's comment came in a message to Bertrand Russell, British philosopher who had sent a message to the Soviet leader appealing to him "not to be provoked by the unjustifiable action of the U.S. in Cuba."

Russell also sent a message to President Kennedy calling the U.S. quarantine action a threat to human survival and urging him to "end this madness."

Upon receipt of Khrushchev's message, the 90-year-old philosopher dispatched another telegram from London urging the Soviet premier to "hold back ships in Cuban waters long

Must Have Guarantees APPEAL REJECTED BY U.S.

Red Ships Back Off From Clash

WASHINGTON (CP)—Some Soviet bloc ships steaming toward Cuba "appear to have altered course," thus backing away from a clash with a massive U.S. fleet blockading Cuba, the defence department said Wednesday.

A spokesman said "other vessels are proceeding toward Cuba." He said no interception of a vessel by the U.S. blockade fleet "has yet been necessary." But the Caribbean vigilance still was being maintained.

STILL MYSTERY

The terse comments did not serve to dispel wholly the mystery shrouding the whereabouts and intentions of a reported 25 Soviet vessels believed bound for Cuba with missiles and bombers that the U.S. has proclaimed it will turn back with force, if necessary.

But the report that some of the vessels appeared to have altered course, combined with a statement by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that he would not be provoked into rash action, helped provide an air of slightly easing tension in the Cuban crisis.

INTENTIONS UNKNOWN

Still missing was any firm evidence of whether the Soviet Union might now or later send some or all of the ships into a full test of the U.S. quarantine on offensive arms shipments into Premier Fidel Castro's encircled island ordered by President Kennedy in a TV-radio address Monday night.

There was no official reaction but there was some doubt whether Kennedy would be willing to meet Khrushchev at the summit until there is further evidence Russia intends to halt its missile build-up in Cuba.

HOWARD GREEN

China Gives Stern Warning

TOKYO (UPI)—The Communist Chinese government issued a stern statement today calling the American blockade of Cuba a "serious war provocation."

The government statement reaffirmed China's strong support of the Fidel Castro regime and declared: "A warning must be issued to the U.S. imperialists: Don't think that you can lord it over the high seas and do as you will to Cuba. The Cuban people are not alone. The entire Socialist (Communist) camp stands on Cuba's side."

This was the first formal Chinese Communist reaction to the American move.

Canada Backs 'Our Friend'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said Wednesday night Canada is backing the United States "all the way" in the Cuban crisis but he declined under persistent questioning to state categorically that it endorses the U.S. arms blockade.

"We have always stood by our friends and the Americans are our friends, so we are standing by them," Mr. Green told a CBC radio-television press conference.

RESERVATIONS
However, his response to repeated questions on whether Canada agrees with the U.S. "quarantine" of Cuba indicated that the government has strong reservations about it.

"The action has been taken," Mr. Green said in reply to one question. "The important thing is what's done from now on."

President Kennedy has turned down the United Nations Cuban appeal in its present form because it provides no guarantee against continuation of the military buildup on the island, it was reported last night.

U Thant, UN acting secretary-general, had asked Kennedy to suspend the naval quarantine of Cuba and Premier Khrushchev to suspend the Soviet Union's armed shipments to Cuba.

Thant told an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council that a suspension of "two or three weeks" might enable the countries to get together and negotiate a settlement of their deadlock over a Russian military buildup in Cuba.

ALL STOPS OUT
Like other speakers in the council debate, Thant pulled out all the stops in describing the extent of the danger facing the world.

"What is at stake is not just the interests of the parties involved, nor just the interests of all member states, but the very fate of mankind," the secretary-general said.

FOR ALL TIME
"If today the United Nations should prove itself ineffective, it may have proved itself for all time."

Thant noted that there is some common ground—a call for negotiations—in rival resolutions presented by the U.S. and Russia on the Cuban question.

UNACCEPTABLE
High officials in Washington said Thant's suggestion for the two or three week suspension of Soviet arms shipments and simultaneous lifting of the U.S. blockade was unacceptable as it stood.

They indicated that Kennedy, in his reply sent to the secretary-general about 6 p.m. P.D.T., outlined the conditions upon which the United States would insist be met before agreeing to suspend its quarantine.

Pedestrian Killed
A Victoria woman died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 11 p.m. last night as the result of an accident at the corner of Gladstone and Fernwood. Mrs. M. J. Fleming, 70, of 1421 Fernwood, was crossing Gladstone from the southeast to the southwest corner at Gladstone about 7:30 p.m. when she was in collision with a car driven by John G. Koning, 2315 Fernwood, police said.

Mrs. Fleming was within the marked crosswalk when the accident occurred, police said.

Mock Battle
BERLIN (UPI)—Five thousand combat-clad American troops waged mock battle in West Berlin Wednesday amid fresh Soviet warnings that all Allied troops must clear out of the city before any German settlement is reached.

Anti-U.S. Shouts Heard Round Globe

LONDON (AP)—Anti-American demonstrators clashed repeatedly with police in running scuffles throughout central London Wednesday night. An American flag was torn to pieces in one affray near the U.S. Embassy.

The demonstrators, many of them waving copies of the Communist Daily Worker, were attempting to stage a mass protest against the U.S. arms blockade of Cuba in Grosvenor Square in front of the U.S. Embassy building. The rally was called by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

More than 300 marching on the embassy for the second night in a row were halted, before they reached it, by cordons of more than 100 policemen. Police buses were drawn up to block access to the square.

The American flag was torn up symbolically in full view of newsreel and television cameras just before a running battle began with the police. The crowd was warded off and three arrests were made there.

The demonstrators then paraded over toward Piccadilly Circus, followed closely by several

Crisis May Strengthen UN

Douglas Hopes Smaller Nations May Gain Controlling Power

By ED CONGROVE

A stronger United Nations—where uncommitted nations would dictate terms of disarmament to the leading powers—may emerge from the present Cuban crisis, New Democratic Party national leader T. C. Douglas said yesterday.

At a press conference following a hard-hitting speech to the B.C. Federation of Labor convention at the Empress Hotel, Mr. Douglas said that if the world escaped a shooting war, a United Nations police force could well become a reality. This, he said, was the supreme test of the U.N.

He said the present crisis underlined the need for the "establishment of a rule of law . . . where no nation no matter how powerful, has the right to unilateral action."

Mr. Douglas said the Cuban crisis demonstrated the need to prevent the spread of nuclear armaments.

"This is the time for the United Nations to . . . demonstrate that it can cope with a major crisis," said Mr. Douglas.

Successful intercession in the present crisis "will give these non-committed nations a sense of purpose and authority . . . it will be the first time they have succeeded in stopping the big powers," said Mr. Douglas.

In his speech Mr. Douglas blamed U.S. policy towards Cuba for creation of the present crisis.

He said he lacked the information to judge the merit of American claims, but felt the blockade should be undertaken by neutral countries.

"The story of Castro is one of a people's revolution over-
